Figure I
Distribution of proposed resources for 2027
(Number of posts/thousands of United States dollars)

2. The overall increase of $5.0 million for the 12 special political missions is attributable primarily to: (a) an increase of $3.8 million under civilian personnel, owing to the application of lower vacancy rates and revised salary rates; and (b) an increase of $1.2 million under operational costs, mainly due to the provisioning of a full year in 2027, compared to nine months budgeted in 2026, for the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen following the transfer as at 1 April 2026 of residual tasks previously performed by the United Nations Mission to Support the Hudaydah Agreement (UNMHA) pursuant to Security Council resolution 2813 (2026) and of requirements under air operations for the rental and operation of one fixed-wing aircraft, and under facilities and infrastructure for the rental of premises and security services. The increase is offset in part by: (a) reduced requirements under communications and information technology, owing to lower needs for the acquisition of equipment and reduced subscription costs for periodicals and publications; and (b) reduced requirements under ground transportation, owing to lower needs for the rental of vehicles and spare parts.

Vacancy rates

3. The proposed vacancy rates applied in the budget take into account the experience to date. The assumptions considered for the proposed vacancy factors include: (a) the 12-month average vacancy rate from January to December 2025; and (b) the actual vacancy rate as at 31 March 2026. The lower of the two was used as the budgeted vacancy rate. This is in line with the policy guidance to improve the accuracy and consistency of the vacancy factors applied in the proposed budgets for 2027 and to ensure that the proposed vacancy rates are based, as much as possible, on actual rates. For the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen, the proposed vacancy rates reflect planned deployments during the period, taking into account the encumbrance of the new positions established as at 1 April 2026 by staff previously funded under UNMHA, reflecting a cost-effective arrangement to ensure operational continuity. A vacancy rate of 50 per cent has been applied in the calculation of costs for the posts proposed for establishment. The proposed vacancy rates for 2027 are outlined in annex II.

Efficiency gains

4. The proposed budget reflects efficiencies and cost-reduction measures, resulting in reduced requirements for civilian personnel and operational costs. Civilian personnel requirements are reduced primarily as a result of: (a) the proposed abolishment of one post at the Under-Secretary-General level in the office of support for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1559 (2004); (b) the proposed downward reclassification of one D-1 post to the P-5 level in the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria; and (c) the proposed relocation of one P-3 post from Geneva to New York under the Office of the United Nations Representative to the Geneva International Discussions. In addition, requirements for operational costs are reduced owing primarily to efficiencies achieved under the following classes of expenditure: (a) communications and information technology, in the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region, reflecting lower subscription costs for periodicals following the shift to a cost-sharing arrangement for electronic resources with the Dag Hammarskjöld Library, replacing individual subscriptions; (b) ground transportation, resulting from the transition to electric vehicles in the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region, leading to reduced fuel consumption and maintenance requirements; (c) official travel, under which additional savings are expected from the increased use of virtual meetings and the consolidation of travel itineraries in the Mission of the Secretary-General's Good Offices in Cyprus and the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region; (d) facilities and infrastructure, resulting from the replacement of conventional light bulbs with energy-efficient alternatives, in the Mission of the Secretary-General's Good Offices in Cyprus; and (e) other supplies, services and equipment, reflecting savings from an increased number of online meetings and a reduced need for interpretation services due to meetings being conducted using a single working language in the Mission of the Secretary-General's Good Offices in Cyprus.

5. Overall, cost efficiencies to be achieved for 2027 are as follows:

Extrabudgetary resources

6. For the sake of brevity, the present document will include a section on extrabudgetary resources only for those missions that have projected extrabudgetary resources in 2026 or 2027.

II. Cross-cutting information

Gender perspective

7. Special political missions are guided by the relevant Security Council resolutions[1] on the women and peace and security agenda, which mandate the incorporation of a gender perspective into the political work of the United Nations, including in special political missions. The missions are also guided by General Assembly resolution 75/100 on the comprehensive review of special political missions, in which the Assembly reaffirmed the important role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts and in peacebuilding and recognized the importance of the equal and effective participation and the full involvement of women at all levels, at all stages and in all aspects of the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and conflict resolution.

8. Specific examples of how special political missions integrate a gender perspective into their operational activities, deliverables and results are given under the individual missions in the present report.

Disability inclusion

9. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, special political missions review the Strategy with a view to further advancing disability inclusion through inclusive messaging, awareness-raising and promoting the Strategy through their work, including in political and peace processes. The missions also support mitigating measures to overcome accessibility challenges, in addition to the efforts by relevant United Nations entities to ensure the accessibility of facilities, platforms, security and other infrastructure to facilitate easy access and use by persons with disabilities.

Evaluation activities

10. In 2025, the Office of Internal Oversight Services (OIOS) completed an evaluation of conflict-specific special political missions under thematic cluster I to assess the relevance, effectiveness and coherence of their contributions to mitigating the risk of violent conflict. The findings of the evaluation have informed the proposed programme plans for the missions for 2027.

11. In response to the evaluation results, missions will strengthen their strategic planning to better adapt to changes in mandate and evolving operational conditions, taking into consideration their respective capacities. Missions will also integrate greater inclusivity into their activities to further enhance their effectiveness and responsiveness. In addition, they will identify lessons learned and best practices by improving knowledge- and information-sharing processes.

12. Mission-specific evaluation activities, where applicable, are described under the respective missions in the present report.

III. Special political missions

1. Mission of the Secretary-General's Good Offices in Cyprus

($2,177,000)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

13. The mandate of the mission derives from the priorities established in relevant Security Council resolutions and decisions and an exchange of letters between the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council (S/2008/456 and S/2008/457). In resolution 1818 (2008), the Council welcomed the intention of the Secretary-General to appoint a Special Adviser, and, in a letter addressed to the President of the Security Council (S/2008/456), the Secretary-General announced his intention to appoint his Special Adviser on Cyprus as from 14 July 2008. Relevant Security Council resolutions from which the mandate derives include resolution 186 (1964) and various subsequent Council resolutions, the most recent being resolution 2815 (2026).

14. The post of Special Adviser was discontinued as at 1 January 2026 following the approval by the General Assembly of the proposal made in the revised estimates relating to the proposed programme budget for 2026 (A/80/400). Accordingly, the name of the mission has been adjusted, from the Office of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Cyprus to the current name.

15. In its resolution 2815 (2026), the Security Council fully supported the Secretary-General's ongoing engagement and welcomed the intensification of dialogue. The Council welcomed the Secretary-General's convening of informal broader-format meetings in March and July 2025 with the two sides and the guarantor powers, emphasized the importance of negotiating a mutually acceptable settlement under United Nations auspices and strongly called upon the sides to engage actively with the Secretary-General and his team to that end. The Council also called on the two leaders to empower the technical committees.

Programme of work

Objective

16. The objective, to which this mission contributes, is to achieve a comprehensive settlement of the Cyprus issue.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

17. To contribute to the objective, the mission will:

(a) Support the two leaders and guarantor powers to promote a peaceful solution and to assist them, should they jointly agree, in the conduct of full-fledged negotiations;

(b) Regularly conduct bilateral meetings and facilitate joint meetings between the leaders and their representatives, emphasizing the importance of effective communication for conflict prevention and trust-building;

(c) Support the implementation of confidence- and trust-building measures and initiatives and the work of the technical committees.

18. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Dialogue among the parties resulting in further rounds of talks towards a comprehensive and just settlement in Cyprus;

(b) Meetings and the expansion of bicommunal contacts;

(c) Empowerment and facilitation of the work of the technical committees, resulting in concrete measures and the implementation of confidence-building measures and trust-building initiatives.

19. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission will coordinate the engagement of international financial institutions in support of the peace process and cooperate with the European Commission, when requested. The mission has gained efficiencies by leveraging support from the Commission, in particular for the 13 technical committees, through a European Union-funded support facility for the activities of the committees.

20. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission, the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus and the United Nations country team will maximize synergies and ensure coherent and effective support for peace efforts, especially for mandated activities in support of the technical committees.

21. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) Continued and sustained political commitment of the parties to the peace process and the technical committees;

(b) Continued and sustained international support for the peace process.

22. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its activities, and advocates for gender equality in the peace process and across the work of all technical committees. It also advocates for greater civic inclusion and the involvement of youth and underrepresented groups.

23. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will further mainstream disability inclusion into its work, advocate for the inclusion of persons with disabilities in engagement with the sides and the technical committees and ensure accessibility and employment opportunities for qualified candidates with disabilities.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

24. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner and contains no substantive adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative.

Evaluation activities

25. In 2025, the evaluation completed by OIOS found that the facilitation of the technical committees was deemed effective by both sides and contributed to fostering engagement, mutual understanding and tangible bicommunal initiatives. The mission illustrated some good practices that facilitated dialogue and helped to build trust between the parties, and was recognized as the only interlocutor working on the Cyprus peace process that was able to engage the two parties on an equal basis.

26. In response to the evaluation, the mission will continue the practices recognized by OIOS that facilitated dialogue and helped to build trust in its work on the peace process. The mission will continue its regular engagement with the diplomatic community and with various local and international civil society organizations and continue to improve meaningful engagement with young people and other underrepresented groups.

27. In 2027, the mission plans to conduct an internal evaluation of its external communications strategy and activities.

Programme performance in 2025

The establishment of the technical committee on youth, together with other trust-building initiatives, strengthened dialogue, reduced tensions and raised hope among Cypriots, improving their situation vis-à-vis prospects for the peace process

28. At the broader-format informal meeting with the guarantor powers on 17 and 18 March 2025, hosted by the Secretary-General, the parties agreed on six trust-building initiatives, including the establishment of a new technical committee on youth. A further broader-format meeting in July 2025 resulted in an additional four initiatives agreed upon to build trust. The Secretary-General hosted the two leaders again in September 2025, and the United Nations facilitated meetings in November and December 2025, and, as of May 2026, four additional leaders' meetings had been held. While the number of meetings with the leaders and their negotiating teams in 2025 remained comparable to 2024, the number of meetings and the outputs of the technical committees increased, including in quality, with projects that improved the daily lives of Cypriots.

29. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 4).

Performance measure

2023 (actual)	2024 (actual)	2025 (actual)
Three meetings of the Cypriot leaders and an increase in dialogue to resolve differences, including through the technical committees	Agreement to explore the opening of new crossing points and to hold an informal broader format meeting with the guarantor powers	A total of 10 trust-building initiatives agreed at the broader-format meetings to improve the daily lives of Cypriots
	Increased activity of civil society organizations and women's groups	The technical committee on youth established and became operational
	Delivery by the technical committees of important projects, improving the daily lives of Cypriots	The rehabilitation of cemeteries by the technical committee on cultural heritage

Planned result for 2027

Furthering dialogue as a conflict management tool and an inclusive and sustainable peace process towards a negotiated settlement

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

30. In 2025, the mission's work contributed to the holding of and support to 63 bilateral and joint meetings with the leaders and their representatives and 358 meetings of the technical committees, falling short of the planned target of 140 and 410 meetings, respectively. This shortfall stemmed primarily from the absence of active negotiations and the shift towards planning for the high-level meetings with the two sides and guarantor powers. In addition, no meetings at the level of the two leaders were held during the pre-election campaign period preceding the change in leadership in the Turkish Cypriot community in October 2025.

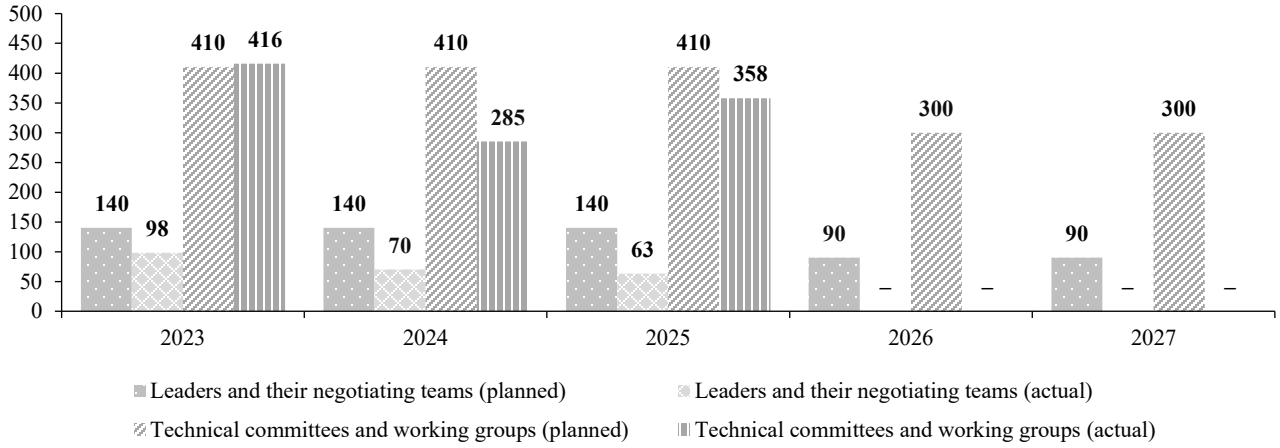

31. In 2027, the mission will focus on the support to high-level meetings, trust-building activities, the work of the technical committees and the use of dialogue as an effective early warning and conflict prevention tool. Amid a persistent challenging regional landscape, additional trust-building measures to benefit Cypriots across the island for 2026 and 2027 will also be pursued.

Lessons learned and planned change

32. The lesson learned in 2025 was that despite tangible progress on trust-building initiatives, including those delegated to the technical committees, public attention focused on measures not yet implemented, which had a negative impact on the atmosphere between the two communities. Considering its unique role in bridging divides, building trust and fostering cooperation in Cyprus, as underscored by the OIOS evaluation, the mission will strengthen its planning tools to improve effectiveness and responsiveness, particularly regarding the technical committees as trust-building bodies. Once trust-building initiatives have received the political support necessary for implementation, the mission will also help the technical committees shorten implementation timelines.

33. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see figure II).

2027 proposed	13	1 D-1, 2 P-5, 1 P-4, 2 P-3, 3 FS, 1 GS (OL) and 3 LL

35. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 for the mission amount to $2,177,000 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($1,921,100) for the continuation of 13 posts (1 D-1, 2 P-5, 1 P-4, 2 P-3, 3 Field Service, 1 General Service (Other level) and 3 Local level), as well as operational costs ($255,900), comprising costs for consultants and consulting services ($18,200), official travel ($50,200), facilities and infrastructure ($82,100), ground transportation ($41,900), communications and information technology ($42,100), medical ($300) and other supplies, services and equipment ($21,100).

36. In 2027, no change is proposed to the number and levels of the posts.

37. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027, as compared with the appropriation for 2026, is attributable primarily to higher requirements for civilian personnel, resulting from: (a) the application of a lower vacancy rate of 7.7 per cent for international staff, compared with 12.8 per cent applied in 2026; (b) the application of a lower vacancy rate of zero per cent for national staff, compared with 16.7 per cent applied in 2026; (c) the latest salary rates for international and national staff; and (d) higher estimates for common staff costs for international staff based on actual past expenditure. The increase is offset in part by: (a) reduced requirements under communications and information technology for the maintenance of equipment and support services, adjusted to align with actual consumption, as well as for information and publication services, based on patterns of utilization in previous years; and (b) reduced requirements for ground transportation for the rental of vehicles and related costs due to efforts to optimize expenditure.

2. Office of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on the Prevention of Genocide

($3,118,400)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

38. The mission is mandated to collect information on massive and serious violations of human rights and international humanitarian law of ethnic and racial origin that, if not prevented or halted, may lead to genocide; to act as a mechanism of early warning to the Secretary-General and, through him, to the Security Council, by bringing to their attention situations that could potentially result in genocide; to make recommendations to the Council, through the Secretary-General, on action to prevent or halt genocide; and to liaise with the United Nations system on activities for the prevention of genocide and on work to enhance the capacity of the United Nations to analyse and manage information regarding genocide or related crimes.

39. The mandate derives from the invitation of the Security Council to the Secretary-General in its resolution 1366 (2001) to refer to the Council information and analysis from within the United Nations system on cases of serious violations of international law, including international humanitarian law and human rights law. The Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide was appointed through an exchange of letters between the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council (S/2004/567 and S/2004/568). The responsibilities of the Special Adviser were listed in the letter of the Secretary-General (S/2004/567). The mandate has been reaffirmed through various resolutions of the Security Council,[2] the General Assembly[3] and the Human Rights Council.[4] In its resolution 77/318, the General Assembly noted the role of the Special Adviser in the launch of the United Nations Strategy and Plan of Action on Hate Speech and as part of efforts to address and counter hate speech.

40. With regard to the responsibility to protect, the General Assembly, in paragraphs 138 and 139 of its resolution 60/1 on the 2005 World Summit Outcome, addressed the responsibility of Member States and the international community to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity. The Security Council reaffirmed the provisions of paragraphs 138 and 139 of that resolution in its resolutions 1674 (2006) and 1706 (2006). Through an exchange of letters (S/2007/721 and S/2007/722), the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on the Responsibility to Protect was appointed and charged with the conceptual, institutional and operational development of the principle and with continuing a political dialogue with Member States on its implementation.

[3] Resolutions 73/328, 75/309, 77/318 and 78/282.
[4] Resolutions 43/29 and 55/13.

The Assembly, in resolution 75/277, included an item on the responsibility to protect in its agenda and requested the Secretary-General to report annually on that item.

41. In its resolutions 2150 (2014) and 2171 (2014), the Security Council recalled the important role of the Special Advisers on the Prevention of Genocide and on the Responsibility to Protect, whose functions included acting as an early warning mechanism to prevent situations that could result in genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and ethnic cleansing.

42. Designated by the Secretary-General as the United Nations focal point for the implementation of the United Nations Strategy and Plan of Action on Hate Speech, launched in 2019, the mission recognizes hate speech as a risk factor and indicator for genocide. The importance of addressing hate speech, and the Special Adviser's role, has been underscored in numerous United Nations resolutions, including General Assembly resolutions 75/309 and 77/318 and Security Council resolution 2686 (2023). Furthermore, the General Assembly, in its resolution 78/282, requested the Secretary-General to establish an outreach programme entitled "The Srebrenica Genocide and the United Nations", starting its activities with preparations for the commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of the genocide in 2025, and to bring the resolution to the attention of all Member States, organizations of the United Nations system and civil society organizations for appropriate observance.

Programme of work

Objective

43. The objective, to which this mission contributes, is to advance national, regional and international efforts to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity and their incitement.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

44. To contribute to the objective, the mission will:

(a) Raise awareness of the causes and dynamics of genocide through predictive and action-oriented analysis, enhanced by the collection and sharing of information from field missions and regional offices in accordance with its early warning mandate;

(b) Alert relevant actors with respect to the risk of genocide, through the implementation of the United Nations Strategy and Plan of Action on Hate Speech, capacity-building and advocacy;

(c) Advocate and mobilize for appropriate action to prevent the risk of genocide through engagement within the United Nations and with external partners;

(d) Strengthen community-level efforts for prevention, including by assisting locally led initiatives aimed at bringing communities together;

(e) Harness technology to enhance prevention and counter its negative impacts, as outlined in Human Rights Council resolution 49/9;

(f) Increase female participation in decision-making roles and support implementation of the plan of action for women in communities to counter hate speech and prevent incitement to violence that could lead to genocide and related crimes;

(g) Prioritize action against Holocaust and genocide denial and the glorification of war crimes and criminals;

(h) Support the universal ratification of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide and support efforts towards its implementation at the national level through legislation and implementation mechanisms.

45. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in increased capacity and action by United Nations intergovernmental bodies, Member States and regional and subregional organizations to prevent and mitigate the risk of genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, including their incitement.

46. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) Continued commitment of Member States, the Security Council and other intergovernmental bodies to engage with the mission to advance the prevention of genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, including through conceptual development and consensus-building on the nature of the responsibility to protect;

(b) Active engagement of Member States and regional and other organizations to develop preventive capacity and take appropriate action for the prevention of genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, including their incitement.

47. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission will continue to work and partner with regional organizations, including the African Union, the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, the Economic Community of West African States, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), the Organization of American States, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) and the European Union, among others, as well as with civil society, including religious leaders, traditional leaders, academia and traditional media, on developing capacity and taking appropriate action for the prevention of genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, including their incitement, at the national, regional and local levels.

48. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission works closely with and supports United Nations country teams on the implementation of the United Nations Strategy and Plan of Action on Hate Speech.

49. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its operational activities, deliverables and results, as appropriate. This includes reflecting the gender dynamics in its monitoring and analysis and striving for the equal participation of women in its capacity-building events and workshops.

50. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission has developed and implements a guidance note on integrating disability inclusion into its programmes and activities to ensure that its work systematically incorporates the rights and needs of persons with disabilities.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

51. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects changes arising from the UN80 Initiative. In particular, the tables of deliverables reflect updated planned deliverables for 2026, in line with the approved programme budget for 2026.

Programme performance in 2025

Strengthened genocide prevention capacities of regional organizations, Governments, non-governmental organizations and civil society organizations

52. In 2025, the mission supported the Ugandan national committee for the prevention of genocide and other mass atrocities, enabling the holding of a two-day workshop to revitalize the committee after two years of inactivity and prepare an action plan ahead of the January 2026 elections in Uganda. The workshop facilitated the committee's election of its new leadership bureau and enhanced members' capacity to assess and respond to risks of genocide and other atrocity crimes. As a result, new leaders were elected, members received targeted training on prevention, and a practical action plan was developed to guide the committee's work during and after the elections. During the elections, the committee deployed observers and produced a report with recommendations to mitigate election-related violence, which the Special Adviser shared with relevant United Nations entities. This experience highlights the value of the mission's support in strengthening national mechanisms for the prevention of genocide and atrocity crimes.

53. Building on sustained technical engagement, the mission also strengthened its prevention framework through the development and adoption of three policy documents and training manuals in 2025. Focused on countering hate speech and enhancing genocide prevention, these resources provide communities, non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and civil society organizations with tools for risk identification and response. As a result, vulnerable communities benefit from stronger risk analysis, more coordinated prevention strategies and increased resilience to genocide, war crimes and crimes against humanity. Combined with increased advocacy following the adoption of General Assembly resolution 78/282 on the International Day of Reflection and Commemoration of the 1995 Genocide in Srebrenica, these advances reinforce global prevention efforts and support healing processes for affected communities.

54. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 9).

Performance measure

Civil society representatives, community leaders, government officials and other national stakeholders prepared comprehensive risk analyses related to genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity and ethnic cleansing through engagement and support from the mission	Global leaders and experts advanced atrocity-prevention strategies through participation in high-level events in Kigali during the commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi, which contributed to the development of several policy documents	National prevention strategies were enhanced through targeted training, which strengthened the Ugandan national committee for the prevention of genocide and other mass atrocities, which elected new leaders and developed a practical action plan to guide its work during and after the 2026 elections
	Civil society organizations formalized partnerships with the mission, enabling closer collaboration on atrocity-prevention activities at the country level	The policy documents and training materials produced through the mission enabled communities, NGOs and civil society organizations to enhance their mechanisms for risk identification and response

Planned result for 2027

Enhanced protection from atrocity crimes through improved awareness and prevention mechanisms and better risk identification capabilities for Member States and regional organizations

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

55. In 2025, the mission advanced national, regional and international efforts to protect populations from genocide, war crimes and crimes against humanity, and met the planned target of 20 follow-up actions taken by Member States and regional organizations to address the risks of such crimes. A special emphasis was placed on supporting the revitalization of prevention of genocide work within the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, reinforcing the commitment of the region to early warning and coordinated prevention efforts.

Lessons learned and planned change

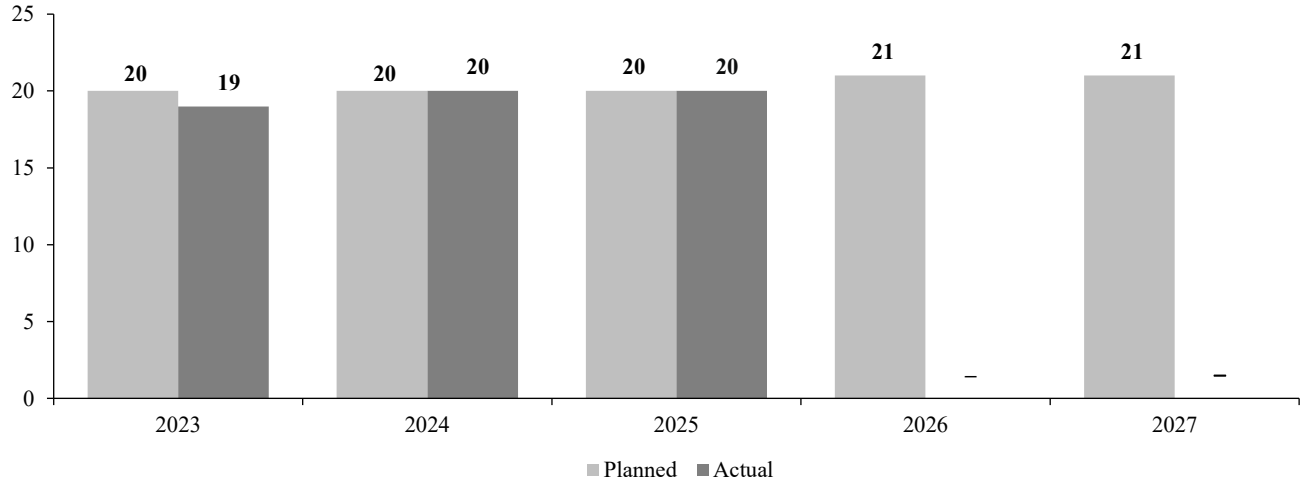

56. The lesson for the mission was that collaborating with United Nations field entities, NGOs and civil society organizations proved essential in improving outreach and strengthening the quality of risk assessments. Joint development of context-specific action plans enhanced partners' capacity to detect and respond to hate-speech trends, while memorandums of understanding with civil society organizations improved access to timely community-level information. Going forward, the mission will deepen collaboration, information-sharing and joint analysis with community-level and regional partners to strengthen the assessment of risks related to genocide and other atrocity crimes.

57. At the same time, to respond to evolving risks of genocide and other atrocity crimes, the mission adjusted its delivery modalities by shifting from predominantly knowledge product outputs to more practice-oriented workshops, strengthening engagement with United Nations country teams and expanding the use of virtual platforms, thereby enhancing reach, responsiveness and impact in support of its prevention objectives.

58. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see figure III).

2027 proposed	14	1 USG, 1 ASG, 2 P-5, 4 P-4, 2 P-3, 2 P-2/1, 2 GS (OL)

60. The proposed resources for 2027 for the mission amount to $3,118,400 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($2,701,000) for 14 posts and positions (1 Under-Secretary-General, 1 Assistant Secretary-General, 2 P-5, 4 P-4, 2 P-3, 2 P-2 and 2 General Service (Other level)), as well as operational costs ($417,400), comprising costs for official travel ($168,000), facilities and infrastructure ($197,800), ground transportation ($3,600), communications and information technology ($24,800) and other supplies, services and equipment ($23,200).

61. For 2027, no change is proposed to the number and levels of the posts and positions.

62. It is proposed that two existing general temporary assistance positions be continued in 2027, as follows:

(a) One Political Affairs Officer (P-4) to enable the mission to continue its support to the implementation of the United Nations Strategy and Plan of Action on Hate Speech in a context where the global rise and spread of hate speech continue to pose a challenge worldwide. The continuation of this position would allow the mission to continue to provide sustained assistance in response to requests from Member States, regional organizations and United Nations field presences for technical assistance and capacity-building in the development and implementation of context-specific action plans to address and counter hate speech;

(b) One Associate Political Affairs Officer (P-2) to strengthen the analysis capacity of the mission and support campaigns on Holocaust denial, countering hate speech and ratification of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide. The position would continue to focus on data analytics and use new technologies to research and gather information, including online trends of hate speech, as a key indicator of risk and potential trigger of genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, which would enable the mission to respond to these new challenges and trends in the prevention of these crimes.

63. The decrease in the requirements for 2027, as compared with the appropriation for 2026, is attributable primarily to reduced requirements for civilian personnel resulting from the application of a higher vacancy rate of 16.7 per cent for international staff, compared with 5.8 per cent applied in 2026, and lower estimates for common staff costs for national staff based on actual past expenditure.

Extrabudgetary resources

64. In 2026, extrabudgetary resources amounting to approximately $480,000 are to be utilized mainly for the staff costs of one post (P-4), the capacity-building and technical assistance programme and the preparation of the 2026 report of the Secretary-General on the responsibility to protect.

65. For 2027, extrabudgetary resources in the estimated amount of $450,000 would continue to provide for one post (P-4), as well as the capacity-building and technical assistance programme and the preparation of the 2027 report of the Secretary-General on the responsibility to protect.

66. The decrease in the estimated extrabudgetary resources to be utilized in 2027 compared with 2026 is due mainly to the completion of some projects supporting capacity-building and technical assistance work, as well as decreased unearmarked contributions.

3. Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for Western Sahara

($544,100)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

67. The Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for Western Sahara is responsible for assisting the parties, Morocco and the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguía el-Hamra y de Río de Oro (Frente POLISARIO), in finding a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara in the context of arrangements consistent with the principles and purposes of the Charter of the United Nations.

68. The mandate derives from the communications between the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council dated 17 March 1997 (S/1997/236), 1 October 2021 (S/2021/851) and 5 October 2021 (S/2021/852), as well as from the priorities established through Security Council resolutions. Most recently, in its resolution 2797 (2025), the Council expressed its full support for the Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy in facilitating and conducting negotiations and called upon the parties to engage in those discussions without preconditions, taking as a basis the autonomy proposal of Morocco, with a view to achieving a final and mutually acceptable political solution that provides for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara.

Programme of work

Objective

69. The objective, to which this mission contributes, is to advance the parties' efforts to achieve a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

70. To contribute to the objective, the mission will:

(a) Encourage the parties to continue the discussion on the question of Western Sahara in order to identify elements of convergence, through bilateral consultations, including with the neighbouring countries of Algeria and Mauritania, conduct visits to the region to meet with key interlocutors and engage in shuttle diplomacy and other activities deemed useful in that regard;

(b) Consult with members of the Security Council and the Group of Friends on Western Sahara, both in their capitals and in New York, as well as with regional organizations, towards a solution;

(c) Facilitate two international meetings bringing together all concerned on Western Sahara.

71. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Additional trust built and strengthened involvement by the parties in the political process;

(b) Maintained support by the international community for the political process.

72. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission regularly meets with regional organizations and other relevant stakeholders to exchange views on the United Nations-led political process.

73. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission receives support for visits and information on developments in Western Sahara from the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara. It also coordinates and liaises with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees on visits to the refugee camps and on confidence-building measures and maintains contact with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in Geneva on issues related to the human rights situation.

74. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) All concerned show willingness to meet for direct negotiations;

(b) The security situation remains conducive to the mission's objective for the region.

75. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its activities. It ensures that women and representatives of women's organizations are included in meetings with civil society and will encourage delegations to include women in political meetings.

76. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will include consultations with persons with disabilities on their inclusion in meetings.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

77. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner and contains no substantive adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative.

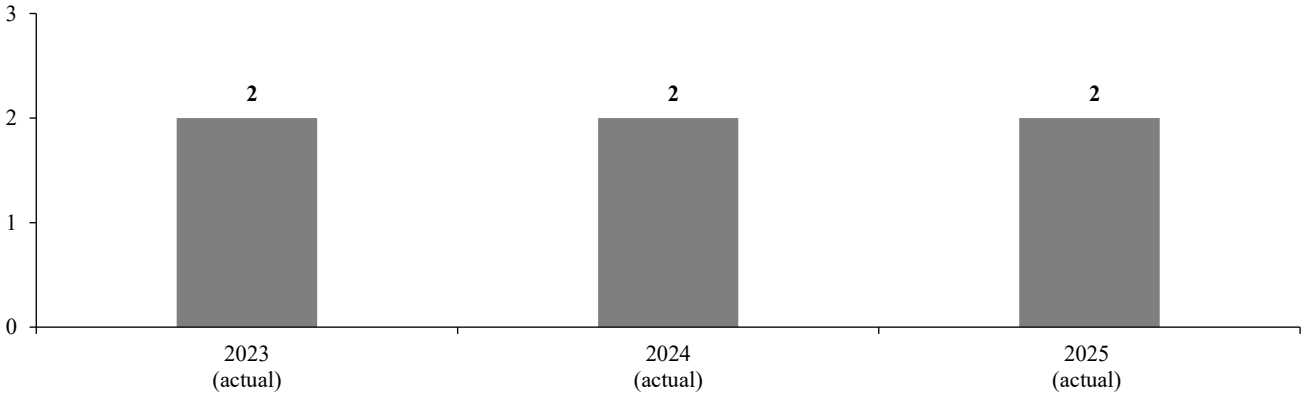

Programme performance in 2025

Readiness of all concerned to engage

78. In 2025, renewed international engagement contributed to efforts of the United Nations to make progress in the political process led by the Personal Envoy. In this context, the Personal Envoy continued his efforts to engage all concerned and undertook broadened consultations on the issue of Western Sahara with a view to constructively advancing the political process. The consultations focused on exploring constructive suggestions for the people of Western Sahara to attain a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution that provides for their self-determination. The adoption of Security Council resolution 2797 (2025) on 31 October 2025 provided new impetus to efforts to resolve the conflict based on renewed international engagement in support of the political process. These developments contributed to a readiness of all concerned to engage with a view to resolving the protracted situation and meeting the aspirations of the people of Western Sahara to find a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution that provides for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara.

79. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see figure IV).

Figure IV
Performance measure: number of rounds of bilateral engagement with all concerned

Planned result for 2027

Advanced political process on Western Sahara

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

80. In 2025, the mission's work contributed to meeting the target of continued engagement between the parties and neighbours and towards advancing the political process. It was not possible to hold the two international meetings in 2025 due to a lack of agreement among all concerned.

81. In 2027, the mission will continue to advance the political process through consultations with all concerned, visits to the region to meet key interlocutors, including representatives of civil society and women's organizations, and other measures deemed useful in this regard. It will also continue to hold consultations with Member States in their capitals and in New York. In addition, the mission will continue to liaise with relevant United Nations entities in Geneva and other locations. The mission will also meet regularly with representatives of relevant regional organizations to exchange views on the United Nations-led process. The mission will seek to convene two international meetings, with the agreement of all concerned.

Lessons learned and planned change

82. The lesson for the mission was to capitalize on the renewed international engagement to advance the political process. The mission intends to further strengthen its engagement with relevant international stakeholders in order to sustain this momentum. The mission will continue to engage regularly with all concerned in order to identify elements of convergence and propose a potential way forward, with a view to achieving a mutually acceptable political solution.

83. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 14).

2027 proposed	2	1 USG, on a when-actually-employed contract, and 1 P-3

85. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 amount to $544,100 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($417,900) for the continuation of the two posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, on a when-actually-employed contract, and 1 P-3), as well as operational costs ($126,200), comprising costs for official travel ($74,700), facilities and infrastructure ($23,000), communications and information technology ($9,600) and other supplies, services and equipment ($18,900).

86. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027, as compared with the appropriation for 2026, is attributable primarily to the higher requirements for civilian personnel resulting from the application of the latest salary scales and higher estimates for common staff costs based on actual past expenditure. The increase is offset in part by reduced requirements for facilities and infrastructure, owing to lower provisions for security services following the discontinuation of office rental for the Special Envoy in Brussels in 2026, and for spare parts and supplies in line with utilization patterns.

4. Support for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1559 (2004)

($431,300)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Mandates and background

87. On 14 December 2004, the Secretary-General appointed his Special Envoy for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1559 (2004) to enable him to report to the Council every six months on the implementation of the resolution, as requested by the Council in its presidential statement of 19 October 2004 (S/PRST/2004/36).

88. In its resolution 1680 (2006), the Council reiterated its call for the full implementation of the provisions of resolution 1559 (2004), and strongly encouraged the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic to respond positively to the request made by the Government of Lebanon, in line with the agreements of the Lebanese national dialogue, to delineate their common border, especially in those areas where the border was uncertain or disputed.

89. In its resolution 1701 (2006), the Council emphasized the importance of the extension of the control of the Government of Lebanon over all Lebanese territory in accordance with the provisions of resolutions 1559 (2004) and 1680 (2006), and of the relevant provisions of the Taif Accords. The Council requested the Secretary-General to develop, in liaison with relevant international actors and the parties concerned, proposals to implement the relevant provisions of the Taif Accords and resolutions 1559 (2004) and 1680 (2006), including disarmament, and for delineation of the international borders of Lebanon.

90. In subsequent resolutions on Lebanon, the Council continued to urge all parties to make tangible progress towards all outstanding issues in the implementation of relevant Council resolutions.

91. In a statement by the President of the Security Council of 16 January 2025 (S/PRST/2025/1), the Council welcomed the cessation of hostilities arrangement between Israel and Lebanon of 26 November 2024 (S/2024/870). The Council called upon the parties to faithfully implement the provisions of the arrangement and for the full implementation of resolution 1701 (2006) and the Security Council's previous relevant resolutions by all parties.

92. In 2016, the Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs was tasked by the Secretary-General with assuming the responsibility of reporting on the implementation of resolution 1559 (2004), an arrangement that has been maintained to date.

Programme of work

Objective

93. The objective, to which this mission contributes, is to ensure full implementation of Security Council resolution 1559 (2004) and all subsequent related resolutions of the Council.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

94. To contribute to the objective, the mission will seek to support efforts to foster consensus on a Lebanese-led and Lebanese-owned national dialogue, which is expected to result in progress on addressing the maintenance of weapons outside State authority.

95. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in informed Security Council deliberations on progress made by Lebanon on the outstanding provisions of Council resolution 1559 (2004).

96. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission coordinates with the Office of the United Nations Special Coordinator for Lebanon, in particular in the process of developing the reports of the Secretary-General.

97. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) The regional environment continues to affect the stability and security of Lebanon;

(b) Following the 2026 legislative elections and the formation of a new Government, the Lebanese leadership pursues efforts to deliver reforms and tangible benefits for the population as it faces reconstruction challenges;

(c) The Government of Lebanon has reaffirmed its commitment to ensuring a State monopoly over the maintenance of weapons;

(d) Member States within and outside the region remain engaged in supporting the disbanding and disarmament of Lebanese and non-Lebanese militias;

(e) Violations of Lebanese sovereignty and territorial integrity persist.

98. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its operational activities by ensuring appropriate consultations with all stakeholders, including women leaders, and the inclusion of gender-disaggregated data, as appropriate.

99. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will support mitigating measures to overcome accessibility challenges, in addition to the efforts undertaken by relevant United Nations entities to ensure the accessibility of facilities, platforms, security and other infrastructure to facilitate easy access and use by persons with disabilities.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

100. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner and contains no substantive adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative.

Programme performance in 2025

Enhanced understanding of Security Council members on developments of relevance to the implementation of resolution 1559 (2004)

101. The mission undertook one trip to Lebanon in March 2025, which informed the drafting of the April 2025 report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolution 1559 (2004).

102. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 19).

Planned result for 2027

Informed Security Council deliberations through analytical reports of the Secretary-General

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

103. The mission's work contributed to informing Security Council deliberations on developments relevant to the implementation of the outstanding provisions of Council resolution 1559 (2004). It met the planned target of Council discussions on the two semi-annual reports to reflect the outcome of consultations on the positions of Lebanese actors vis-à-vis the maintenance of weapons outside State authority.

104. In 2027, the mission will continue to report to the Security Council semi-annually on progress in the implementation of the resolution, in particular the disbanding and disarmament of Lebanese and non-Lebanese militias. The changed context in the Syrian Arab Republic may offer greater opportunities for progress in the implementation of resolution 1680 (2006).

Lessons learned and planned change

105. The lesson for the mission was that digital technologies allow increasing analytical capacity across languages of relevance to the mandate. In applying the lesson, the mission will leverage integrated, real-time data analytics to analyse conflict dynamics between Lebanon and Israel, strengthen prevention, and support evidence-based decision-making on the disarmament of militias.

106. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 20).

108. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 for the mission amount to $431,300 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($381,800) for the continuation of two posts (1 P-4 and 1 General Service (Other level)), as well as operational costs ($49,500), comprising costs for official travel ($13,900), facilities and infrastructure ($30,500) and communications and information technology ($5,100).

109. For 2027, the mission is proposing the abolishment of one post, as follows:

> Abolishment of the post of Special Envoy of the Secretary-General (Under-Secretary-General), previously budgeted as a $1-per-year contract, as the functions associated with the post have, in practice, been undertaken by the Under-Secretary-General for Political and Peacebuilding Affairs.

110. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027, as compared with the appropriation for 2026, is attributable primarily to the higher requirements for international staff resulting from the application of the latest salary scales and higher estimates for common staff costs based on actual past expenditure. The increase is offset by reduced requirements for national staff resulting from the application of lower estimates for common staff costs based on actual past expenditure.

5. Office of the United Nations Representative to the Geneva International Discussions

($997,200)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

111. The mission is mandated to support the Geneva International Discussions and the Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism under United Nations auspices in Gali, Georgia, by facilitating the participation of the United Nations in the international discussions in Geneva and the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism, and by liaising and coordinating with the relevant actors. The mission is also responsible for preparing, convening and facilitating, in consultation with the other Co-Chairs, the European Union and OSCE, the sessions of the Geneva International Discussions as well as the periodic meetings of the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism.

112. The United Nations has continued to support the Geneva International Discussions on security and stability and the return of internally displaced persons and refugees, which commenced on 15 October 2008 in Geneva in accordance with the six-point agreement of 12 August 2008 and the implementing measures of 8 September 2008, mediated by the French presidency of the European Union, following the hostilities of August 2008 (S/2009/254). In its resolution 1866 (2009), the Security Council welcomed the beginning of the discussions and requested the Secretary-General, through his Special Representative, to continue to fully support the process. The Secretary-General addressed a letter on the matter to the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Georgia on 29 September 2009, and the Minister replied to the Secretary-General on 28 October 2009.

113. Against the background of the "Proposals for joint incident prevention and response mechanisms", agreed to in Geneva on 18 February 2009, the Secretary-General, on 28 September 2009, addressed a letter to the President of the Security Council in which he stated that the United Nations would continue to support the Geneva International Discussions and the Mechanism through a limited number of personnel with the task of facilitating the United Nations participation in the international discussions in Geneva and in the Mechanism, and liaising and coordinating with the relevant actors.

114. In a letter dated 28 December 2009 addressed to the President of the Security Council, the Secretary-General noted that the United Nations would continue to provide support for the Geneva International Discussions and the work of the Mechanism. In a letter dated 25 February 2010 addressed to the President of the Security Council (S/2010/103), the Secretary-General conveyed his intention to appoint a United Nations Representative responsible for United Nations support for the Geneva International Discussions and the Mechanism. In a letter dated 2 May 2011 (S/2011/279), the President of the Security Council informed the Secretary-General that the members of the Security Council had taken note of his intention and of the information contained in his letter of 25 February 2010. In 2018, there was an additional exchange of letters between the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council regarding the appointment of a United Nations Representative.

115. Currently, one Assistant Secretary-General in the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs discharges the responsibilities of the United Nations Representative to the Geneva International Discussions.

Programme of work

Objective

116. The objective, to which this mission contributes, is to advance the main agenda items of the Geneva International Discussions, including the non-use of force/international security arrangements and addressing the issue of internally displaced persons and refugees, in the context of the Discussions and the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

117. To contribute to the objective, the mission, in close partnership with the other Co-Chairs, will continue efforts to facilitate progress on key agenda items of the Discussions, and ensure that the regular meetings of the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism serve as results-oriented platforms for dialogue and conflict prevention.

118. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Contributing to the objective of transitioning the Discussions from a conflict management to a conflict transformation and resolution process;

(b) Addressing and making progress on central issues, including the non-use of force/international security arrangements and internally displaced persons and refugees.

119. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) All stakeholders will continue to support the Discussions and the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism and the engagement of the United Nations;

(b) All stakeholders will support efforts to enhance the effectiveness of the Discussions;

(c) The Co-Chairs will continue to collaborate closely to fulfil the mandate of the Discussions.

120. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission coordinates with the European Union and OSCE Co-Chairs. It maintains contact with the European Union Monitoring Mission in Georgia and OSCE, which jointly facilitate the work of the Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism in Ergneti and other relevant actors.

121. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission cooperates closely with entities within the United Nations system so as to coordinate and strengthen the role and contribution of the United Nations within the framework of the Discussions and the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism, especially in addressing humanitarian issues.

122. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its activities, including engaging in advocacy for gender equality and promoting the role of women in conflict resolution and peacebuilding, including within the framework of the Co-Chairs' joint strategy and action plan on women and peace and security.

123. The mission will closely cooperate with the United Nations Office at Geneva in the implementation of the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

124. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner and contains no substantive adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative.

Programme performance in 2025

Continuation of efforts to achieve concrete results on key issues on the agenda of the Geneva International Discussions

125. Three rounds of the Discussions took place in 2025, on 4 and 5 March, 25 and 26 June and 11 and 12 November, respectively. The Co-Chairs organized three visits to Tbilisi, Moscow, Sukhumi and Tskhinvali, as well as a visit to Washington, D.C., and New York. The Co-Chairs also briefed the OSCE Permanent Council in Vienna on 25 September 2025. In addition to traditional bilateral meetings with participants of the rounds of the Discussions, the Co-Chairs, during the sixty-fourth round, conducted an information session on the issues of mobility and freedom of movement, inviting external experts, which was acknowledged by the participants. The mission undertook visits to Tbilisi, Zugdidi, Gali and Sukhumi to engage with relevant actors. Despite the mission's efforts, no meetings of the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism took place due to persisting differences among key participants on the modalities. The mission will continue its efforts aimed at resumption of the Mechanism.

126. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 25).

Planned result for 2027

Advancing progress on the main agenda items of the Geneva International Discussions

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

127. In 2025, the mission contributed to ensuring the regular engagement of all participants in the Discussions and helped to prevent the resumption of hostilities. The target of progress on the agenda of the Discussions could not be achieved, owing primarily to persistent differences in positions among the participants.

128. In 2027, the mission, in cooperation with the other Co-Chairs, will continue efforts to advance progress on substantive agenda items and ensure the regular functioning of the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism on the basis of the established principles and practices.

Lessons learned and planned change

129. The lesson for the mission was the importance of strong coordination and collaboration among the three Co-Chairs to better prepare for the rounds. While engagement with stakeholders remained essential, improved coordination among the Co-Chairs enhanced the coherence and impact of activities. Virtual platforms enabled more frequent, flexible interactions, but combining them with in-person meetings proved necessary for effective discussions and sustained cooperation.

130. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 26).

133. For 2027, the proposed staffing complement includes the establishment of one post, as well as the redeployment of one post, as follows:

(a) Establishment of one post of Administrative Assistant (General Service (Other level)) in New York to provide administrative support to the mission and the United Nations Co-Chair functions of the Geneva International Discussions carried out by Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs. The establishment of this post is essential to ensure the effective discharge of the Co-Chair functions at Headquarters and to provide dedicated administrative and operational support to the United Nations Co-Chair and the United Nations Representative to the Geneva International Discussions team, consistent with the approved structure, objectives and effective implementation of the mandate;

(b) Redeployment of one post of Political Affairs Officer (P-3) from Geneva to New York to strengthen Headquarters support for the United Nations Co-Chair functions of the Discussions, including liaison and coordination with the other Co-Chairs from the European Union and OSCE, as well as other relevant stakeholders.

134. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027, as compared with the appropriation for 2026, is attributable primarily to the establishment of one General Service post (at a 50 per cent vacancy rate). The increase is offset in part by: (a) reduced requirements for international staff due to the application of a higher vacancy rate of 22.2 per cent compared with 16.7 applied in 2026, as well as lower salary costs following the proposed relocation of the Political Affairs Officer (P-3) from Geneva to New York; and (b) reduced requirements for telecommunications and network services, as well as software licences, to align with actual consumption.

6. Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria

($14,392,200)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

135. Established in 2012 as the Office of the Joint Special Envoy of the United Nations and the League of Arab States (LAS) to Syria, the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria has primarily focused on carrying out the activities mandated by the Security Council in its resolution 2254 (2015). Other mandated priorities and tasks of the Office are contained in Security Council resolutions 2118 (2013), 2268 (2016) and 2336 (2016), as well as General Assembly resolution 66/253 A.

136. Since the developments of 8 December 2024, the Security Council has called for an inclusive, Syrian-led and owned political transition process grounded in the key principles of resolution 2254 (2015), as recalled in resolution 2799 (2025). The Council, as reflected in the statements by the President of the Security Council of 14 March and 10 August 2025 (S/PRST/2025/4 and S/PRST/2025/6, respectively), reaffirmed the importance of the role of the United Nations in supporting this political transition process and has reiterated its support for the efforts of the Special Envoy in this regard.

Programme of work

Objective

137. The objective of this mission is to advance the full implementation of all the relevant General Assembly and Security Council resolutions towards an inclusive, credible, comprehensive Syrian-owned and -led political solution to the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic that meets the legitimate aspirations of the Syrian people for dignity, freedom and justice, based on the principles of equality and non-discrimination and with the full and meaningful participation of women.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

138. To contribute to the objective, the mission will, in agreement with the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic:

(a) Offer its good offices to contribute to conflict prevention and resolution, supporting the country's sovereignty and territorial integrity;

(b) Support national efforts for institutional reform;

(c) Support the Syrian-led process of drafting a new permanent constitution that reflects a new social contract that is inclusive of all Syrian constituencies;

(d) Assist the Syrian-led process of preparing inclusive, free and fair elections;

(e) Support the legislative work of the transitional People's Assembly;

(f) Support the advancement of transitional justice, including through assistance in rule of law reform and national reconciliation;

(g) Support economic recovery and reconstruction, including with a view to facilitating the return of internally displaced persons and refugees;

(h) Support the country's economic recovery, including by addressing sanctions and other constraints;

(i) Promote the meaningful political participation of women, including through community representation, and civic space for civil society to operate freely;

(j) Advocate for the respect, protection and fulfilment of human rights of all Syrians, and promote accountability for serious violations and reparations for survivors;

(k) Strengthen United Nations coordination across humanitarian, development and peacebuilding pillars in support of the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and the Syrian people to enhance coherence, effectiveness and impact across all United Nations activities in the Syrian Arab Republic.

139. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Sustained, regular and substantive dialogue with the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and the broadest possible spectrum of Syrian society on all key aspects of the political transition process;

(b) A political transition process that integrates the perspectives of all Syrian constituencies at all stages, fosters social cohesion and progressively provides a pathway to long-term, inclusive governance, based on a new constitution and free and fair elections;

(c) Increased trust among all Syrian constituencies in the political transition process, supported by strong international consensus and conducted in a climate of national reconciliation, which is essential for lasting peace and stability;

(d) Gradual economic recovery that would facilitate the return of Syrians and economic development;

(e) Strengthened coordination among United Nations humanitarian, development and peacebuilding entities, and among regional and international actors, to ensure coherent support for the Syrian-led political transition, stabilization and recovery efforts.

140. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) National, regional and international stakeholders will show readiness to constructively engage and cooperate with the Office of the Special Envoy to advance common objectives, in a spirit of good faith and shared responsibility;

(b) The country will continue to face substantial challenges related to national reconciliation, the establishment of State authority, security sector reform, respect for the rule of law, security threats and violations of its sovereignty. Governance will therefore remain challenging but is expected to gradually evolve towards a more inclusive and stable political and institutional framework;

(c) Processes for accountability and transitional justice will be accompanied by genuine efforts to promote social peace and national reconciliation among Syrians;

(d) The Syrian economy will remain fragile, requiring sustained international financial and technical support throughout 2027 and beyond, along with continued adjustments to regulatory and institutional frameworks, including strengthening anti-corruption measures and transparency safeguards to build investor and donor confidence and enable recovery and growth;

(e) In 2027, the mission will maintain operational flexibility to support its mandate from locations deemed most effective and appropriate, subject to the Government's authorization and security considerations.

141. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission will continue to engage with Syrian women and civil society and draw on their inputs and insights. In addition, the mission will engage with and, as appropriate, offer support within its mandate to specialized Syrian and international bodies, including the Syrian national commissions for transitional justice and missing persons. Furthermore, the mission will engage with international organizations engaged in the country's political transition process, with a view to ensuring coordination and complementarity.

142. With regard to intra-United Nations coordination, the mission will maintain close coordination with the Resident and Humanitarian Coordinator, the United Nations country team and relevant United Nations humanitarian, development and peacebuilding entities, mindful of the need to ensure a coherent "One United Nations" approach, maximize practical impact, avoid inefficiencies and duplication, and ensure that the partnership delivers tangible results for the Syrian people. The mission will also support the Independent International Commission of Inquiry on the Syrian Arab Republic; the International, Impartial and Independent Mechanism to Assist in the Investigation and Prosecution of Persons Responsible for the Most Serious Crimes under International Law Committed in the Syrian Arab Republic since March 2011; and the Independent Institution on Missing Persons in the Syrian Arab Republic. The mission will focus on substantive areas where it can add distinct value in support of the country's political transition, guided by operational effectiveness.

143. The mission will continue to integrate gender, disability and anti-racism perspectives across its activities, including by renewing its gender strategy for 2026–2027 and adapting it to the new political context, promoting the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy through staff training and communications, and advancing the strategic action plan for addressing racism and promoting dignity for all in the United Nations Secretariat, in coordination with the Anti-Racism Office.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

144. The proposed programme plan for 2027 contains no significant change arising from the UN80 Initiative and reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner.

Evaluation activities

145. In 2025, OIOS completed an evaluation of cluster I conflict-specific special political missions. OIOS found that the mission was one successful example of effectively developing and implementing mechanisms for broadening the inclusion of civil society and women. The mission continues to implement successful methods for enhanced inclusion into its activities and programme plans.

146. In 2027, the mission will regularly conduct internal evaluations of the efficiency and effectiveness of its activities, adjusting them as needed in response to evolving political dynamics or emerging needs and requests from the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and other partners. The results of these evaluations, including lessons learned, will inform future planning processes and be reflected in subsequent programme plans.

Programme performance in 2025

Constructive, coherent and comprehensive multilateral approach and continuous progress towards an inclusive, sustainable political solution in line with Security Council resolution 2254 (2015)

147. In 2025, the Special Envoy engaged with the caretaker authorities and the subsequently formed Government, as well as the leadership of the Syrian Democratic Forces; leaders from the Druze, Alawite, Christian and other communities; a broad spectrum of Syrian civil society; and key regional and international partners, including through participation in international gatherings. Through these engagements, the Special Envoy helped maintain focus on a balanced, rights-based approach, emphasizing de-escalation, accountability, humanitarian access, reconstruction, detainees and reconciliation, while promoting confidence-building and dialogue to address local concerns and safeguard the country's unity.

148. Overall, the mission moved from a context of stalled mediation to active good offices engagement, advice and support. The value of this role lay in sustaining dialogue, promoting inclusivity and aligning international efforts behind a Syrian-led and Syrian-owned political transition in line with the core elements of Security Council resolution 2254 (2015). At a critical juncture, this work helped preserve momentum and reinforced the principle that only negotiation, compromise and broad participation – rather than rushed or exclusionary processes – can secure a durable and peaceful future for the Syrian Arab Republic. Steps have been taken on the institutional, constitutional and governance fronts, and further progress is needed to ensure a fully inclusive and participatory transition.

149. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 31).

No consensus was found on a venue for resuming the Constitutional Committee or on ways to address substantive challenges facing the Committee. Proposals by the Special Envoy to advance step-for-step confidence-building measures in line with Security Council resolution 2254 (2015) were put forward	No progress was made in advancing mediation between the former Government and opposition. After 8 December, national, regional and international stakeholders were brought in and benefited from systematic consultations with the mission with a view to supporting an orderly, credible and inclusive transitional process	Momentum was preserved around a Syrian-led and Syrian-owned political transition process, with improved alignment of national and international efforts in support of that process. The principle was reinforced that only dialogue, de-escalation, compromise and broad participation can secure a durable and peaceful future for the Syrian Arab Republic

Progress towards institutional consolidation and reform in line with the principles of Security Council resolution 2254 (2015), supported by the widest possible spectrum of Syrian stakeholders and underpinned by strong international consensus

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

150. In 2025, the mission's work contributed to maintaining momentum around a Syrian-led and Syrian-owned political transition process, with improved alignment of national and international efforts in support of that process. It reinforced the principle that only dialogue, de-escalation, compromise and broad participation can secure a durable and peaceful future for the Syrian Arab Republic. Despite these efforts, the planned targets for 2025 were not fully achieved, largely due to structural constraints and evolving realities on the ground.

151. In 2027, the mission will continue to offer its good offices to advance a peaceful, orderly, transparent and inclusive political transition, consistent with the principles of resolution 2254 (2015). The mission seeks to become a trusted partner for the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and to establish more systematic consultation and partnership, while also ensuring continued engagement with all other constituencies across the country.

Lessons learned and planned change

152. A key lesson for the mission was the need to strengthen engagement on the ground and enhance accessibility to the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and the people it serves, in order to ensure closer alignment with evolving needs and realities and to better support the political transition process. In this regard, the potential establishment of small sub-offices in existing United Nations hubs outside Damascus, with the agreement of the Government, will be evaluated as a means to improve operational outreach and deepen local engagement.

153. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 32).

155. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 for the mission amount to $14,392,200 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($9,017,700) for 65 posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, 1 Assistant Secretary-General, 1 D-2, 2 D-1, 6 P-5, 10 P-4, 4 P-3, 5 Field Service, 1 National Professional Officer, 5 General Service (Other level) and 29 Local level), as well as operational costs ($5,374,500), comprising costs for consultants and consulting services ($81,700), official travel ($537,600), facilities and infrastructure ($3,826,800), ground transportation ($223,600), communications and information technology ($321,400), medical ($18,000) and other supplies, services and equipment ($365,400).

156. For 2027, the Office is proposing the downward reclassification of the Geneva-based post of Chief of Staff from D-1 to P-5 in order to implement the UN80 Initiative requirement of reducing the number of senior posts. However, an overall organizational restructuring of the mission is expected to take place by the end 2026, depending on the outcome of the ongoing discussions with the Government on areas of cooperation with the mission, as well as whether and when the Geneva-based staff will be relocated to Damascus (which also requires the Government's authorization). As a result of this restructuring, the decision on this specific D-1 post would be reviewed, together with the grades and profiles of other posts that may be required because of the mission's agreed activities, as well as the unification of the two parts of the mission into one single location in Damascus, should the Government authorize it. The review will also be aimed at nationalizing international posts, where appropriate, and take into account any additional security posts that may be required because of the relocation to Damascus.

157. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027, as compared with the appropriation for 2026, is attributable primarily to higher requirements for civilian personnel, resulting from: (a) the application of a lower vacancy rate of 10.0 per cent for international staff, compared with the rate of 27.5 per cent applied in 2026; (b) the application of a lower vacancy rate of 5.7 per cent for national staff, compared with the rate of 15.4 per cent applied in 2026; (c) the latest salary rates for international and national staff; and (d) higher estimates for common staff costs based on actual past expenditure. These increases are offset in part by the discontinuation of danger pay for all areas and duty stations in the Syrian Arab Republic as per latest updates from the International Civil Service Commission.

7. Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Horn of Africa

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

158. The mandate of the mission derives from an exchange of letters between the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council (S/2018/955 and S/2018/979), when the remit of the mandate of the former Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan and South Sudan was expanded to cover the entire Horn of Africa region, following previous exchanges of letters (including S/2016/258 and S/2016/259). In line with the letters of 2018, the mission also continues to carry out the functions previously performed by the Special Envoy for the Sudan and South Sudan relating to the maintenance of good and peaceful neighbourly relations between the Sudan and South Sudan, established pursuant to the exchange of letters between the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council in 2011 (S/2011/474 and S/2011/475). The mandate includes cooperation with the African Union High-level Implementation Panel in efforts to implement Security Council resolution 2046 (2012), in which the Council called upon the Sudan and South Sudan to reach an agreement on critical issues, including: (a) the full and urgent advancement of all outstanding issues from the Comprehensive Peace Agreement; and (b) the easing of tensions and the facilitation of the resumption of negotiations on post-secession relations and the normalization of their relations. Furthermore, the mission works closely with and supports member States of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development (IGAD), in line with the Joint Framework for Cooperation between the United Nations and IGAD signed in Djibouti on 17 November 2015, and other regional organizations in promoting peace and security across the Horn of Africa.

Programme of work

Objective

159. The objective, to which this mission contributes, is to establish and maintain good and peaceful neighbourly relations between the countries of the Horn of Africa region, encompassing Djibouti, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Kenya, Somalia, South Sudan, the Sudan and Uganda, to consolidate and sustain gains in peace and security and enhance regional conflict prevention.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

160. To contribute to the objective, the mission will:

(a) Support regional peace and security, development, integration and inclusive governance while addressing climate-security linkages, in line with the Pact for the Future. The mission will provide United Nations political leadership under the comprehensive regional prevention and integration strategy for the Horn of Africa for the period 2024–2028, including preventive action on emerging conflicts, and strengthen cooperation with IGAD, the African Union and partners to harmonize approaches through multilateral mechanisms;

(b) Foster trust among member States and regional institutions through dialogue on divisive issues and encourage cooperation on climate adaptation, food security, infrastructure, the women and peace and security agenda and the youth, peace and security agenda. The mission will leverage existing regional platforms to promote constructive dialogues;

(c) Utilize the good offices of the Secretary-General and the collective influence of IGAD member States to encourage dialogue and joint initiatives, including with middle powers, while harmonizing efforts among international partners;

(d) Collaborate with IGAD, the African Union and other partners in addressing security threats through improved information-sharing, partner coordination and coherent messaging. The mission will undertake preventive engagement on political transitions and elections with regional implications, including in South Sudan in February 2027 and in contexts affected by the reconfiguration of United Nations presences. The mission will leverage the convening authority of the United Nations to complement initiatives led by the African Union and IGAD;

(e) Support efforts to advance political dialogue and peace processes under the women and peace and security agenda and the youth, peace and security agenda, including by encouraging the meaningful participation of women and youth and promoting inclusive approaches to conflict prevention and peacebuilding.

161. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Enhanced subregional capacities, improved trust among member States, stronger dialogue on cross-border and strategic issues, reduced tension and increased cooperation on shared challenges affecting regional stability;

(b) Greater alignment of regional and international partners with United Nations, IGAD and African Union strategic frameworks, advancing more coordinated regional approaches;

(c) A more coherent One United Nations approach in the region that supports the implementation of the regional strategy and integrates the women and peace and security agenda, climate-related risks and youth participation across peace and security, development and human rights work.

162. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) IGAD and the African Union remain fully engaged in regional peace and security, maintaining focus on Ethiopia, Eritrea, Somalia, the Sudan and South Sudan, and advancing approaches that integrate gender, climate-related and youth dimensions;

(b) States of the region continue constructive engagement with the Special Envoy and the United Nations on capacity-building, particularly with regard to mediation, conflict prevention and conflict resolution;

(c) South Sudanese parties, with regional support, remain committed to implementing the Revitalized Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan and ensuring a peaceful conclusion of the transitional period ending in February 2027, if not further extended;

(d) Sudan-South Sudan relations remain constructive despite the war in the Sudan, allowing continued engagement on outstanding bilateral issues, including Abyei;

(e) Relations among countries experiencing tensions continue on a path of de-escalation, allowing space for constructive dialogue;

(f) Regional and national stakeholders remain committed to advancing the women and peace and security agenda and the youth, peace and security agenda, ensuring political space for the meaningful participation of women and young people in political and peacebuilding processes.

163. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission works closely with IGAD and its States members, the African Union, the European Union and other partners to address regional dimensions of crises, focusing on cross-border implications and supporting political cooperation and regional integration.

164. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission will continue its close engagement with the Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to the African Union, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for South Sudan and Head of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan, resident coordinators, peace and development advisers and United Nations entities across the Horn of Africa region to ensure a coherent approach to prevention. In 2027, this coordination will strengthen information-sharing and joint analysis, while reducing duplication to enable a more efficient and targeted use of resources.

165. The mission integrates a gender perspective across its operational activities, including good offices, missions, seminars and workshops. It promotes inclusive messaging and strengthens women's participation in political and peace processes through engagement in regional and global forums of the women and peace and security agenda.

166. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will support IGAD and the African Union in enhancing the participation of persons with disabilities in political, peace and security initiatives.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

167. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner and contains no substantive adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative.

Programme performance in 2025

Strengthened regional coherence and coordinated preventive action in the Horn of Africa

168. In 2025, the mission played a central role in advancing preventive diplomacy and confidence-building amid regional tensions. Through sustained political engagement, the Special Envoy worked with regional leaders, neighbouring States and partners to promote dialogue. A key achievement was the establishment of structured engagement platforms, which bring together permanent members of the Security Council and influential regional actors to align messaging and reduce fragmentation among external initiatives.

169. The mission also strengthened regional United Nations coordination through joint regional analysis, shared risk assessments and the prioritization of collective action, leading to more effective information-sharing, consistent messaging and better sequencing of diplomatic interventions in contexts marked by political transitions and protracted crises.

170. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 37).

Performance measure

2023 (actual)	2024 (actual)	2025 (actual)
Revision of regional prevention and integration strategy completed and endorsed, leading to more focused priorities for engagement of the United Nations system in the Horn of Africa	Launch and implementation of the new regional prevention and integration strategy, contributing to increased collaboration among United Nations entities and their partners in the region and more impactful engagement of the United Nations system to address conflict and its root causes in the region	Establishment and utilization of structured political engagement and coordination mechanisms to support dialogue among regional actors and external partners, contributing to more aligned messaging, enhanced information-sharing and better sequencing of diplomatic interventions

Planned result for 2027

Enhanced collective action in implementing the prevention agenda in the Horn of Africa

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

171. In 2025, the mission's work contributed to strengthened regional coherence in preventive engagement across the Horn of Africa. Through the good offices of the Secretary-General and closer collaboration with regional organizations and stakeholders, the mission supported enhanced information-sharing and consistent messaging and improved the sequencing of engagement. Joint regional analyses and coordination mechanisms under the regional prevention and integration strategy fostered a shared understanding of risks and entry points for collective action, reinforcing regional ownership of prevention efforts.

172. In 2027, the mission will support political and peace processes in the region by working with the African Union, IGAD, Member States and regional actors. Leveraging the convening power of the United Nations, the mission will promote trust-building, dialogue on regional issues and unified action by key stakeholders. These efforts are aimed at strengthening the prevention of crises. The mission will also coordinate the implementation of the regional prevention and integration strategy, ensuring a coherent One United Nations approach across the peace and security, development and human rights pillars.

Lessons learned and planned change

173. The lesson for the mission was that preventive engagement through regional coordination is most effective when used to inform decision-making and the sequencing of political engagement based on shared analysis and clearly identified risks. In applying this lesson, the mission will focus on prioritizing high-impact actions, collective messaging with regional partners and targeted joint efforts to reduce fragmentation and prevent escalation.

174. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 38).

176. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 for the mission amount to $2,013,000 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($1,825,100) for the continuation of nine posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, 1 D-1, 2 P-4, 1 P-3, 2 National Professional Officer and 2 Local level), as well as operational costs ($187,900), comprising costs for official travel ($68,300), facilities and infrastructure ($32,000), ground transportation ($38,500) communications and information technology ($40,800), medical ($3,800) and other supplies, services and equipment ($4,500).

177. For 2027, no change is proposed to the number and levels of the posts.

178. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027, as compared with the appropriation for 2026, is attributable primarily to: (a) higher requirements for civilian personnel resulting from the application of a lower vacancy rate of zero per cent for international staff compared with 5.0 per cent applied in 2026, and higher estimates for common staff costs for international staff and National Professional Officers based on actual past expenditure; (b) increased requirements for communication and information technology, reflecting updated charges for centralized services provided by the United Nations Office to the African Union (UNOAU) which were not provisioned for previously, as well as higher telecommunications costs due to increased prices for local services; and (c) increased requirements under ground transportation for the lease of an electric vehicle to replace one of the four ageing vehicles, which is more than 18 years old.

Extrabudgetary resources

179. In 2026, extrabudgetary resources amounting to approximately $846,200 are being utilized to provide for three posts (1 P-5, 1 P-2 and 1 Local level), one United Nations Volunteer and operational costs and programmatic activities.

180. In 2027, extrabudgetary resources in the estimated amount of $846,200 will continue to provide for the continuation of three posts (1 P-5, 1 P-2 and 1 Local level), one United Nations Volunteer and operational costs and programmatic activities.

8. Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region

($4,940,300)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

181. The mandate of the mission derives from Security Council resolution 2098 (2013) and various subsequent Council resolutions, the most recent being resolution 2808 (2025). Established in 2013, the mission is responsible for supporting the implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Region, which was signed on 24 February 2013 by Angola, Burundi, the Central African Republic, the Congo, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Rwanda, South Africa, South Sudan, Uganda, the United Republic of Tanzania and Zambia, as well as representatives of the United Nations, the African Union, the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region and the Southern African Development Community (SADC), acting as guarantor institutions. On 31 January 2014, Kenya and the Sudan also signed the Framework. The Framework outlines national, regional and international commitments required to end the recurring cycles of violence in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo and address the root causes of conflict in the region.

182. In its resolution 2808 (2025), the Security Council reaffirmed the importance of an integrated regional approach under the African Union and stressed the commitments undertaken by the signatories of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework not to tolerate nor provide assistance or support of any kind to armed groups. In its resolutions 2765 (2024), 2773 (2025) and 2808 (2025), the Council called upon the Special Envoy to intensify his engagement to support the full implementation of the Framework, as well as to support regional peace processes and strengthen regional diplomatic mediation efforts.

Programme of work

Objective

183. The objective is to advance the effective implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework by supporting and facilitating political, security and economic engagements between the signatory countries, while ensuring coherent and coordinated support from regional and international partners, in line with the United Nations Strategy for Peace Consolidation, Conflict Prevention and Conflict Resolution in the Great Lakes Region and its action plan.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

184. To contribute to the objective, the mission will:

(a) Support signatory countries in efforts to implement the revitalized Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework;

(b) Provide the Secretary-General's good offices and enhance support to regional peace processes, including through assistance to mediation efforts and the implementation of agreements;

(c) Support the implementation of regional non-military approaches to disarming, demobilizing, repatriating where applicable, and reintegrating members of armed groups and help to strengthen existing security cooperation mechanisms;

(d) Support the effective participation of civil society, women and young people in political and peacebuilding processes, and promote the economic empowerment of young people;

(e) Promote regional economic integration, including the implementation of the recommendations of the high-level regional workshop on natural resources held in 2021 in Khartoum;

(f) Promote regional judicial cooperation, in close cooperation with the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region;

(g) Support the implementation of the United Nations regional strategy and its action plan for the period 2025–2027, through the coordination and provision of secretariat support to its senior policy group and implementation support mechanism.

185. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Signatory countries of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework implementing recommendations from the revitalization process to address root causes of conflict;

(b) Signatory countries engaging in regional peace processes and implementing political agreements, contributing to the de-escalation of bilateral tensions and improving the security and humanitarian situation in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(c) Countries concerned enhancing cooperation to address the threat posed by armed groups and coordinating regional disarmament, demobilization, repatriation and reintegration initiatives through the Contact and Coordination Group on non-military measures and its operational cell;

(d) An increased number of civil society organizations, including women's and youth organizations, contributing to regional peace processes and cross-border peacebuilding initiatives;

(e) Signatory countries strengthening regional judicial cooperation through the Great Lakes Judicial Cooperation Network;

(f) Signatory countries increasing economic cooperation and implementing initiatives to curb the illicit exploitation of and trade in natural resources, with a focus on artisanal gold and coltan;

(g) United Nations entities enhancing coordination and ensuring greater alignment between national strategic cooperation frameworks and the objectives of the United Nations regional strategy.

186. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) Eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo will continue to face insecurity, while relations between some countries will remain tense, notwithstanding diplomatic efforts;

(b) The Washington and Doha processes and the African Union-led mediation will require continued support;

(c) The African Union-led mediation will continue, requiring sustained support from the United Nations and regional and international partners;

(d) Continued support will be required to strengthen the participation and contribution of women and young people in the implementation of peace agreements, the advancement of peace processes and community peacebuilding;

(e) Signatory countries of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework will demonstrate renewed political will to implement their commitments;

(f) International partners will continue to support efforts towards a political settlement of the conflict in the Great Lakes region.

187. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission will enhance coordination with the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region to support complementary approaches under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework and the Pact on Security, Stability and Development in the Great Lakes Region. The Special Envoy will continue to participate in the International Contact Group.

188. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission will continue to work closely with the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including on political and technical support to the ongoing peace processes, as well as in the context of regional cooperation on non-military measures related to disarmament, demobilization, repatriation and reintegration. Support for regional peace efforts will continue to be coordinated through a mechanism comprising the mission, the Stabilization Mission, the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa and the United Nations Office to the African Union. The senior policy group overseeing the United Nations regional strategy, chaired by the Special Envoy, along with its implementation support mechanism and integrated secretariat, will continue to ensure alignment among United Nations entities in the region, leveraging expertise and information-sharing across offices, thereby enhancing resource efficiencies and synergies.

189. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its operational activities, deliverables and results. In addition to high-level advocacy initiatives, the mission supports the Advisory Board for Women, Peace and Security in the Great Lakes Region in its efforts to promote women's participation in dialogue, peacebuilding, political and electoral processes, mainstream gender equality into regional economic initiatives, including in the mining sector, promote partnerships with Member States to raise awareness on sexual and gender-based violence, and promote the implementation of regional instruments on protection.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

190. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner and contains no substantive adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative.

Evaluation activities

191. In 2027, the mission plans to evaluate its support to the implementation of the revitalized Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, including the delivery of its programmes.

Programme performance in 2025

Strengthened coherence between regional and international peace efforts

192. Following the capture of Goma and Bukavu in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, the Special Envoy intensified engagements with regional and international stakeholders to help to prevent a regional spillover of the conflict and maintain coherence and complementarity among the concurrent peace initiatives. Through sustained outreach, the Special Envoy helped to ensure that African-led efforts were consistent with ongoing efforts under the Washington and Doha processes.

193. The mission supported preparations for a coordination meeting in Lomé between the African Union mediator between the Democratic Republic of the Congo and Rwanda and the Panel of Facilitators, which clarified the way forward and the relevant roles of the facilitators. Throughout the period, the Special Envoy had regular contact with African Union senior officials to strengthen coordination and collaboration.

194. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 43).

Performance measure

2023 (actual)	2024 (actual)	2025 (actual)
Enhanced complementarity and coordination between regional and international peace initiatives. Capacity-building and strengthened coordination enabled the East African Community secretariat to advance the Nairobi process in complementarity with the Luanda process Participation of the former President of Kenya, Uhuru Kenyatta, as East African Community Facilitator in the eleventh Regional Oversight Mechanism high-level meeting, alongside technical consultations in support of the Luanda process, further reinforced alignment between mediation tracks	Revitalization of regional peace efforts and closer coordination between the Nairobi and Luanda tracks contributed to greater convergence between the East African Community and SADC initiatives and reduced diplomatic fragmentation, enabling more coherent regional engagement	Communities in the region benefited from the reduced risk of a regional escalation and from more coherent peace mediation efforts as regional, continental and international peace efforts became better aligned Greater coordination among African-led mediation actors led to the decision by the East African Community and SADC to merge the Nairobi process and the Luanda process, creating a more unified mediation framework Strengthened African leadership in peace efforts and clearer roles for mediators across peace initiatives

		Increased engagement by two of the facilitators helped to elevate attention to the women and peace and security agenda, contributing to greater recognition of the challenges facing women and communities affected by conflict

Planned result for 2027

A revitalized Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework better addresses the root causes of recurrent crises in the Great Lakes region

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

195. In 2025, the mission met the target by supporting the revitalization of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework. The twelfth high-level meeting of the Regional Oversight Mechanism adopted an action plan and, at the thirty-ninth meeting of the Technical Support Committee, progress in its implementation was reviewed. On 21 December, a joint ad hoc summit of the Mechanism and the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region was convened to address crises, strengthen alignment with the Washington and Doha processes and enhance coherence between the Framework and the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region pact. The mission co-organized, together with the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region and the Kimberley Process secretariat, a workshop to strengthen the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region Regional Initiative against the Illegal Exploitation of Natural Resources. The mission also facilitated the development of regional standard operating procedures for disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, reintegration and resettlement by the Contact and Coordination Group on non-military measures.

196. In 2027, the mission will continue to support the Framework and strengthen synergies between African-led and international mediation efforts in a gender-sensitive manner.

Lessons learned and planned change

197. Notwithstanding sustained peace efforts, military offensives continued in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, increasing the risk of regional spillover. This underscores the urgency of addressing the root causes of the conflict and advancing inclusive political solutions.

198. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 44).

2027 proposed	23	1 USG, 2 D-1, 4 P-5, 5 P-4, 5 P-3, 1 FS, 5 LL

200. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 for the mission amount to $4,940,300 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($4,220,000) for the continuation of 23 posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, 2 D-1, 4 P-5, 5 P-4, 5 P-3, 1 Field Service and 5 Local level), as well as operational costs ($720,300), comprising costs for consultants and consulting services ($21,800), official travel ($289,300), facilities and infrastructure ($22,500), ground transportation ($19,000), air operations ($15,600), communications and information technology ($111,400), medical ($15,800) and other supplies, services and equipment ($224,900).

201. For 2027, no change is proposed to the number and levels of the posts.

202. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027 compared with the appropriation for 2026 is attributable primarily to higher requirements for civilian personnel, resulting from: (a) the application of a lower vacancy rate for national staff of zero per cent compared with 12.5 per cent applied in 2026; and (b) the application of the most recent salary scales for international and national staff. The increase is offset in part by: (a) a higher vacancy rate of 16.7 per cent for international staff compared with 12.7 per cent applied in 2026; (b) reduced requirements under communications and information technology due to lower subscription costs for periodicals, resulting from a shift to a more cost-efficient cost-sharing arrangement; (c) reduced requirements for official travel due to lower ticket costs and daily subsistence allowances; and (d) reduced requirements for other supplies, services and equipment due to lower requirements for individual contractors and other services.

Extrabudgetary resources

203. In 2026, extrabudgetary resources in the amount of $1,500,000 are estimated to fund one post (P-4) and to support the implementation of the project for the reduction of small arms circulation in the Great Lakes region.

204. In 2027, extrabudgetary resources in the amount of $2,300,000 are estimated to fund three posts (1 P-4, 1 National Professional Officer and 1 Local level) and to support the implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework through various activities across thematic areas.

205. The increase in the estimated extrabudgetary resources to be utilized in 2027 compared with 2026 is due to higher projected contributions.

9. Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen

($24,100,000)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

206. The mission is responsible for exercising the good offices of the Secretary-General to enable the resumption of a peaceful, inclusive, orderly, Yemeni-led and Yemeni-owned political transition process that meets the legitimate demands and aspirations of the Yemeni people, including women and young people, for peaceful change and meaningful reform, as set out in the Initiative of the Gulf Cooperation Council and its implementation mechanism and the outcomes of the comprehensive National Dialogue Conference. The mandate derives from Security Council resolution 2014 (2011) and from subsequent Council resolutions, the most recent being resolution 2813 (2026).

207. To ensure the implementation of Security Council resolutions 2014 (2011) and 2051 (2012), together with the political transition agreed in November 2011 under the Initiative of the Gulf Cooperation Council and its implementation mechanism for the political transition process in Yemen, the Secretary-General established the Office of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Yemen, in accordance with an exchange of letters with the President of the Security Council in June 2012, which was then subsumed into the Office of the Special Envoy (S/2012/469 and S/2012/470).

208. In line with Security Council resolution 2216 (2015), as well as other Council resolutions on Yemen, including resolutions 2014 (2011), 2051 (2012), 2140 (2014), 2201 (2015), 2451 (2018), 2452 (2019), 2722 (2024) 2742 (2024) and 2813 (2026), as well as the letter from the Secretary-General addressed to the President of the Security Council (S/2016/488), the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen will continue to mediate between the parties, while supporting the parties to implement the relevant aspects of the Stockholm Agreement and its related Hudaydah Agreement (S/2018/1134, annex) as part of efforts towards reaching a Yemen-wide ceasefire, and to engage other Yemenis and regional and international stakeholders in support of the Yemeni transition process and an inclusive Yemeni-led and Yemeni-owned political process under United Nations auspices.

209. Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2813 (2026), which terminated the UNMHA mandate and transferred its residual tasks to the Office of the Special Envoy, the mission will support the parties in implementing the Agreement on the City of Hudaydah and the Ports of Hudaydah, Salif and Ra's Isa (Hudaydah Agreement), as endorsed by the Council in its resolution 2451 (2018), as well as integrate these relevant tasks into its security-related engagement, including the convening of the Redeployment Coordination Committee, coordination of mine action activities, and monitoring and reporting on military and security developments, as well as periodic visits.

Programme of work

Objective

210. The objective, to which this mission contributes, is to achieve a negotiated political settlement between the parties to end the conflict in Yemen and enable the resumption of a peaceful, inclusive, orderly, Yemeni-led and Yemeni-owned political transition that will lead Yemenis towards a path of sustainable peace.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

211. To contribute to the objective, the mission will:

(a) Lead mediation efforts with the parties, supported by regional and international actors, to identify confidence-building measures and advance the political process. To ensure inclusive participation and the reflection of the priorities of the broader Yemeni population, the mission will regularly consult Yemeni political parties, women, young people, civil society and other stakeholders through inclusive consultation formats. The mission will mediate further releases of conflict-related detainees;

(b) Engage the parties and security actors, including through the Military Coordination Committee, as part of the efforts to reach a Yemen-wide ceasefire and agreements on longer-term security arrangements. The mission will also chair the Redeployment Coordination Committee, monitor and report on relevant developments and coordinate mine action to implement the residual tasks of the Hudaydah Agreement;

(c) Mediate between the parties, while also engaging technical experts, the private sector, international financial institutions and other relevant stakeholders to advance near-term economic de-escalation and confidence-building measures, as well as to identify solutions to longer-term economic issues essential to a comprehensive resolution to the conflict;

(d) Continue to support the parties in implementing the Hudaydah Agreement through the collection and collation of information pertaining to the implementation of the Agreement, the chairing of the Redeployment Coordination Committee in order to achieve and sustain de-escalation, supporting measures to mitigate security risks affecting civilians and civilian movement, the advancement of mine action interventions, and encouraging further releases of conflict-related detainees in furtherance of the broader United Nations-facilitated political process;

(e) Engage with regional stakeholders, the Security Council and the wider international community to maintain concerted diplomatic backing for the United Nations mediation process;

(f) Utilize strategic communications to support implementation of the mission's mandate by strengthening public understanding of the United Nations-facilitated political process, enhancing transparency across the political, economic and security tracks, and fostering an informed information environment that mitigates misinformation and supports constructive engagement among Yemeni stakeholders.

212. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Progress towards agreements between the parties on political, economic and military/security measures that improve living conditions in Yemen and contribute to a sustainable, peaceful and inclusive settlement of the conflict;

(b) Engagement with diverse Yemeni political and social stakeholders, including women, young people, media entities and the broader public, to inform the United Nations-led mediation process;

(c) Sustained, coherent international and regional support for the United Nations-led mediation process.

213. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission engages closely with international and regional organizations, including the League of Arab States, the Gulf Cooperation Council, the European Union and the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and other international partners, including international financial institutions.

214. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission cooperates with the Resident/Humanitarian Coordinator and the United Nations country team in Yemen. The mission consults and coordinates closely with the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs and with other special political missions in the region.

215. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) The parties will continue to engage with the Office and, to the extent possible, facilitate access and conditions necessary to sustain dialogue, support de-escalation efforts and enable continued engagement with Yemeni stakeholders, amid a constrained and evolving operating environment;

(b) Notwithstanding a complex mediation environment affected by regional dynamics, ongoing conflict and a constrained operating environment, international and Yemeni support for the United Nations-led mediation process is sustained;

(c) The mission maintains its presence in Yemen in Sana'a and Aden and continues to have access to key Yemeni stakeholders, including through digital means, albeit with restrictions due to the security situation on the ground.

216. The mission continues to integrate a gender perspective into its operations, including by ensuring the meaningful inclusion of women in the mediation process and by ensuring that their perspectives inform the negotiation agenda and outcomes.

217. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will ensure that its engagement approaches are inclusive of persons with disabilities.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

218. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects efforts of the mission to implement all mandates in a more efficient and effective manner and contains no substantive adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative.

Evaluation activities

219. In 2025, OIOS, as indicated in paragraph 10 in the present report, completed an evaluation of conflict-specific special political missions under thematic cluster I, which have guided the proposed programme plan for 2027.

220. In response to that evaluation, the mission will strengthen the discipline and coherence of its internal planning, including clearer prioritization and closer integration across its political, economic and security tracks, and will make more systematic use of existing mechanisms for information-sharing and internal coordination across its duty stations, while continuing to apply remote modalities, as reflected in its strategy, to sustain consultations and outreach in a constrained operating environment.

Programme performance in 2025

Multi-track United Nations-led mediation process advanced

221. In 2025, the mission advanced efforts in support of the United Nations-facilitated political process. On the political track, the mission regularly engaged with the conflict parties, as well as regional and international actors. The mission also held political consultations with diverse Yemeni political actors, women, media, young people and civil society across multiple governorates. Notwithstanding tensions in the region, the Red Sea and parts of southern Yemen, front lines within Yemen remained broadly stable, with the mission's proactive and broad engagement contributing to preserving space for continued dialogue. The mission also co-convened, with ICRC, a meeting of the supervisory committee on the implementation of the detainees' agreement in Muscat, which resulted in an initial agreement that marked a step forward for the potential release of thousands of conflict-related detainees.

222. With respect to the economic track, the mission engaged with senior Government of Yemen and Houthi-affiliated officials, as well as with key and senior private sector actors, to better understand key economic developments, issues and pressure points affecting the conflict, and to identify viable entry points, with a focus on confidence-building measures and developing concrete solutions, for example, overcoming the bifurcation of the Central Bank and the currency. As regards the military and security track, the mission convened six meetings with delegations of the Military Coordination Committee to discuss and plan for a national ceasefire and transitional security arrangements.

223. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 49).

Table 49

Notwithstanding the formal expiry of the 2022 truce, hostilities remained limited. Throughout 2023, Sana'a airport was open, with flights continuing between Sana'a and Amman. Fuel shipments and deliveries of non-food/non-medicine cargo and construction materials into the ports of Hudaydah also continued after the expiry of the truce	The main provisions of the 2022 truce held in large part, notwithstanding occasional flare-ups. Hostilities across Yemeni frontlines remained limited and contained. Notwithstanding periodic disruptions, Sana'a airport remained open for the most part, with flights continuing for most of the year between Sana'a and Amman. Fuel shipments and deliveries of essential non-food and construction materials to Hudaydah ports continued	Notwithstanding continued regional tensions and the absence of a formal truce, front lines across Yemen remained broadly stable in 2025, with no return to large-scale hostilities. Confidence-building measures, including progress on conflict-related detainees and the reopening of key roads, were pursued during the year, supporting civilian movement across frontlines

Planned results for 2027

Result 1: diverse Yemeni perspectives reflected and enhanced impetus towards a Yemeni-owned and sustainable peace

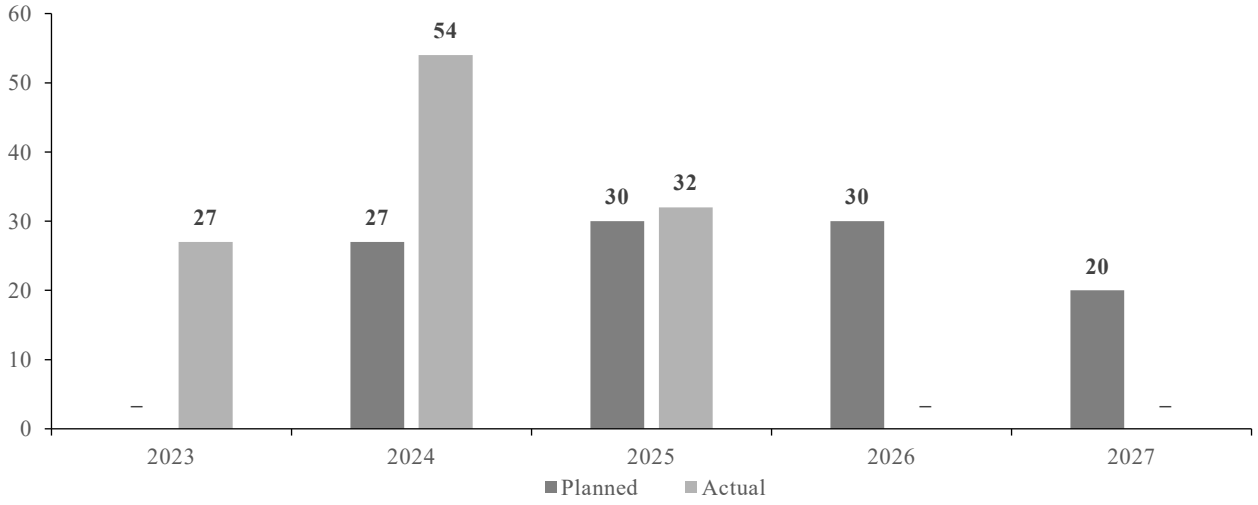

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

224. In 2025, the mission's work contributed to expanded political engagement and 32 consultations with Yemeni interlocutors, which exceeded the planned target of 30 consultations. Engagements included field missions to Hadramawt, Ta'izz and Mahrah, expert consultations on political, economic and transitional justice issues, and structured dialogue with security actors, enabling broader inclusion of regional and stakeholder perspectives. Although the mission exceeded its target, it held fewer consultations than in 2024, owing mainly to a shift to more integrated engagements and tighter operational and financial constraints.

225. In 2027, the mission will continue efforts on sustaining and further broadening inclusive engagement with Yemeni stakeholders across political, economic and security tracks, including through the mission's presence in Yemen (Aden and Sana'a) and Jordan, as well as through periodic missions to Hudaydah Governorate and elsewhere and engagement at the local, national and regional levels.

226. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measures (see figure V).

Performance measure: number of formal consultations with Yemeni interlocutors

Result 2: increased clarity and shared understanding among interlocutors on priority de-escalatory, confidence-building and economic proposals, contributing to improved living conditions for Yemenis

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

227. In 2025, the mission engaged interlocutors across political, military-security and economic tracks, including through expert consultations on economic issues, engagement on conflict-related detainees and support for local confidence-building measures such as the reopening of key roads, contributing to maintaining relative stability and supporting civilian movement and economic activity. Building on this, in 2027 the mission will continue to engage on priority proposals across tracks, with a view to supporting more informed consideration of such measures.

Lessons learned and planned change

228. The lesson for the mission was that engagement on increasingly technical and complex proposals required not only sustained dialogue, but also a sufficient level of shared understanding among interlocutors to support informed consideration and avoid misinterpretation. In applying the lesson, the mission will place greater emphasis on iterative and inclusive engagement on priority proposals across political, military-security and economic tracks, supported by more structured analytical input and coordinated complementary channels, including track II engagement and other coordinated efforts, to support more informed and coherent consideration of such proposals.

229. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 50).

231. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 for the mission amount to $24,100,000 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($12,572,400) for 107 posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, 3 D-1, 3 P-5, 16 P-4, 9 P-3, 1 P-2, 20 Field Service, 11 National Professional Officer and 43 Local level), including the proposed staff changes outlined below, as well as operational costs ($11,527,600), comprising costs for official travel ($463,700), facilities and infrastructure ($4,258,000), ground transportation ($315,300), air operations ($4,242,800), communications and information technology ($1,246,400), medical ($221,300) and other supplies, services and equipment ($780,100).

232. In 2027, no change is proposed to the number and levels of the posts and positions.

233. It is proposed that two existing general temporary assistance positions be continued in 2027, as follows:

(a) Programme Management Officer (P-4) in the Security Sector Section to continue to provide technical assistance to mine action bodies in both Sana'a and Aden, oversight of mine action activities and coordination with both parties to the conflict. In addition, the incumbent would provide advice to the Special Envoy and senior leadership on landmine, explosive remnants of war, improvised explosive devices and sea mine contamination and the associated risks to the United Nations and civilians, and set up preventive measures for the United Nations activities in country;

(b) Finance and Budget Officer (P-3) in the Field Operations Finance Division to ensure the capacity of the Division to facilitate, through the provision of substantive services, the deliberations and decision-making of the General Assembly and relevant subsidiary organs on budgetary matters related to special political missions, taking into consideration the increased workload and the breadth of support needed for such missions. The continuation of this post would be critical to ensuring the provision of strategic guidance and support to missions on budgeting, financial resource stewardship and the management of authorized staffing tables, in compliance with the regulatory framework of the Financial Regulations and Rules of the United Nations and additional requirements imposed in the light of the liquidity constraints. In this role, the incumbent would coordinate planning and support activities, analyse proposed resource requirements and the application of strategic guidance from other Headquarters departments and offices, in particular the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs, and provide advice and direction to all stakeholders involved. To facilitate decision-making by the General Assembly, the incumbent, when required, would engage and liaise with internal and external entities, including delegations.

234. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027 compared with the appropriation for 2026 is attributable primarily to: (a) higher requirements for civilian personnel, resulting from the delayed impact of 27 new posts and positions approved in the 2026 budget at a 50 per cent vacancy rate for six months; (b) the application of lower vacancy rates of 11.3, 18.2 and 11.6 per cent for international staff, National Professional Officers and Local level staff, respectively, compared with the rates of 12.0, 20.0 and 24.1 applied in 2026; (c) updated salary scales for international and national staff; (d) increased requirements under facilities and infrastructure to cover the full year of contractual responsibilities for the rental and security services for offices and premises previously cost-shared with UNMHA, rather than the nine months budgeted in 2026; (e) increased requirements under air operations to provide for the rental and operation of one fixed-wing aircraft for a full year, instead of nine months as budgeted in 2026, following the transfer of UNMHA air operations contracts to the Office of the Special Envoy effective 1 April 2026; and (f) increase requirements under other supplies, services and equipment reflecting the higher demand for individual contractors providing support in interpretation services, contract management, and property and inventory control, as well as higher bank charges resulting from the opening of a new house bank in Djibouti, established to resolve recurring payment challenges associated with SWIFT transfers to Yemen. These increases were offset in part by: (a) lower estimates for common staff costs for international staff based on actual past expenditure; (b) reduced requirements under ground transportation due to lower needs for spare parts; and (c) decreased requirements under communications and information technology due to lower requirements for the acquisition of communications and information technology equipment.

Extrabudgetary resources

235. In 2026, extrabudgetary resources in the estimated amount of $4.3 million will fund 12 positions (1 D-1, 1 P-5, 3 P-4, 2 P-3, 4 National Professional Officer and 1 Local level) to support the Special Envoy's efforts to reach sustainable and inclusive agreements to end the conflict in Yemen.

236. In 2027, extrabudgetary resources in the estimated amount of $4.7 million are projected to fund 11 positions (1 P-5, 3 P-4, 2 P-3, 4 National Professional Officer and 1 Local level) and support the same activities as in 2026.

10. Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General on Myanmar

($1,314,200)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

237. The mission is responsible for the provision of the Secretary-General's good offices through discussions involving all relevant stakeholders and assistance to Myanmar. The mandate was defined by the General Assembly in its resolution 72/248 and has been renewed on a yearly basis since, most recently in resolution 80/221. In resolution 2669 (2022), the Security Council reinforced the urgent need to end the human suffering and provided further guidance on the scope of work of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General, including by encouraging close coordination with the Special Envoy of the ASEAN Chair on Myanmar. The situation in Myanmar continues to deteriorate following the military takeover of February 2021, with serious regional impacts and implications for the human rights of the Rohingya Muslims and other groups. Fighting between the Myanmar armed forces and ethnic armed organizations and other resistance forces has continued to intensify and has severely affected civilians.

Programme of work

Objective

238. The objective, to which the mission contributes, is to support an inclusive Myanmar-led democratic and peaceful nation-building process and the creation of conditions that are conducive to the voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable return and reintegration of Rohingya in Myanmar.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

239. To contribute to the objective and address the deteriorating situation in Myanmar, the mission will:

(a) Implement a multitrack approach, in accordance with the Pact for the Future, including strengthening cooperation between the United Nations and ASEAN. In close coordination with the Special Envoy of the ASEAN Chair and United Nations partners, the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General will seek to support Myanmar-led processes for the resolution of the crisis. The Special Envoy will complement regional efforts to support the effective implementation of the ASEAN five-point consensus, aligned with the needs of the people of Myanmar, and will support the coordinated humanitarian and development engagement of the United Nations system;

(b) Advocate for a Myanmar-led process towards a peaceful, democratic and inclusive future and promote a coherent international and regional approach. The mission will continue to initiate inclusive and participatory approaches with minorities, young people and women, whose voices are critical to fostering social cohesion and developing a way out of the current political crisis in line with the will of the people;

(c) Continue efforts to create an environment that is conducive to the voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable return to Rakhine State of the forcibly displaced Rohingya in the region, including from Bangladesh. The Special Envoy will continue to promote a political solution that addresses the underlying issues in consultation with the Rohingya and to advocate for the improvement of the conditions on the ground, in line with the recommendations of the Advisory Commission on Rakhine State and the commitments made at the General Assembly High-level Conference on the Situation of Rohingya Muslims and Other Minorities in Myanmar, held on 30 September 2025.

240. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Improved conditions for the safe, voluntary, dignified and sustainable return of forcibly displaced populations;

(b) The creation of conditions that are conducive to a de-escalation of violence and an increase in trust among communities;

(c) Greater international and regional political support towards Myanmar-led processes for the resolution of the crisis;

(d) Key stakeholders advancing discussions towards the establishment of a Myanmar-led process on restoring democratic and human rights norms, and continued engagement with all stakeholders to identify potential for common ground.

241. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) A viable path back to civilian rule is grounded on the cessation of violence and a genuine commitment to inclusive dialogue with the full participation of civil society, including women, young people and ethnic and minority communities;

(b) The impact on civilians from the continued violence since the military takeover, serious human rights violations and the need for civilian protection will remain a significant challenge in restoring peace in the country;

(c) The situation will continue to require concrete action towards improved conditions to allow for the safe, dignified, voluntary and sustainable return of the Rohingya and their reintegration in Myanmar. The rights and security of the Rohingya people need to be guaranteed and embedded in Myanmar-led solutions towards a peaceful, democratic and inclusive future;

(d) Illicit activities and related financial flows, closely linked to the conflict in Myanmar and the downfall of the formal economy, will continue to hamper conflict resolution and impede socioeconomic and development efforts. Expansion of transnational crime networks emanating from Myanmar will have increasing regional implications.

242. With regard to cooperation with other entities, the mission works in partnership with ASEAN, especially the Special Envoy of the ASEAN Chair, other key regional organizations, such as the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (OIC) and the European Union, neighbouring countries and international donors to mobilize support for Myanmar-led processes for the resolution of the crisis.

243. The mission coordinates closely with the United Nations system through established channels, in close consultation with the resident coordinators in Bangladesh and Myanmar. The Special Envoy of the Secretary-General continues to carry out the good offices mandate in close cooperation with the United Nations country team, regional offices and Headquarters, as well as mechanisms on Myanmar mandated by the Human Rights Council. The mission also works in partnership with United Nations entities to foster inclusion of diverse and vulnerable groups, such as women and young people, in dialogue processes.

244. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its operational activities, deliverables and results, as appropriate, and supports efforts to strengthen the capacity of Myanmar women to participate regionally and globally in women and peace and security engagements and to amplify the voices of the most marginalized women.

245. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will foster the inclusion of persons with disabilities in its political strategy and its efforts on building inclusion.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

246. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects changes arising from the UN80 Initiative. In particular, the tables of deliverables reflect updated planned deliverables for 2026, in line with the approved programme budget for 2026.

Programme performance in 2025

Cessation of violence and progress towards a Myanmar-led political solution to the crisis, including creating conditions conducive to the return of refugees

247. In 2025, the Special Envoy engaged Myanmar stakeholders, Member States and civil society to explore pathways towards a Myanmar-led political solution to the country's multidimensional crisis and its regional implications. During her visits to Myanmar, the Special Envoy underscored the opportunity for the country to unite in response to the March 2025 earthquakes and for building momentum towards a cessation of hostilities and an inclusive political process. While several armed actors declared unilateral ceasefires to allow for rescue and recovery efforts, these were ultimately not sustained, and violence continued. Through continuous engagement, including participation in the General Assembly High-level Conference on the Situation of Rohingya Muslims and Other Minorities in Myanmar, the Special Envoy helped to renew international attention to the Rohingya crisis and generate new funding pledges for the response. Strong coordination with the ASEAN Special Envoy and advancing United Nations-ASEAN cooperation, including joint women and peace and security initiatives, helped to amplify the voices of Myanmar women. The Special Envoy also continued efforts to promote system-wide coherence and safeguard the operating space of the United Nations country team in Myanmar.

248. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 55).

Table 55

Planned result for 2027

Progress towards improved humanitarian conditions and a Myanmar-led inclusive, democratic and peaceful nation-building process

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

249. In 2025, the work of the mission aimed to contribute to sustainable solutions for the Rohingya, which did not meet the planned target of facilitating local initiatives in support of social cohesion. The target was not met owing to the deterioration in security conditions in Myanmar, including in Rakhine State, where fighting between the Arakan Army and the Myanmar armed forces continued. The mission continues to engage key stakeholders to advocate for improved conditions in Rakhine that would allow for the safe, dignified and sustainable return of refugees and approaches that reduce their dependence on humanitarian aid and promote resilience. In 2027, the mission, in cooperation with ASEAN, will concentrate efforts on supporting Myanmar-led processes to resolve the crisis in line with the ASEAN five-point consensus.

Lessons learned and planned change

250. A lesson learned for the mission was the importance of amplifying voices from the ground and ensuring they had international platforms to share their perspectives and inform policy decisions that affect them. Going forward, the mission will seek to explore additional avenues to ensure that vulnerable communities are heard and their capacities strengthened, including for local-level conflict resolution and peacebuilding.

251. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 56).

2027 proposed	5	1 USG, 1 D-1, 1 P-5 and 1 P-4 and 1 LL (general temporary assistance) position

253. The proposed resource requirements for 2027 for the mission amount to $1,314,200 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for salaries and common staff costs ($1,096,500) for the continuation of four posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, 1 D-1, 1 P-5 and 1 P-4) and one Local level general temporary assistance position, as well as operational costs ($217,700), comprising costs for official travel ($76,700), facilities and infrastructure ($17,800), ground transportation ($7,000), communications and information technology ($25,300), medical ($900) and other supplies, services and equipment ($90,000).

254. After a security assessment conducted by the Department of Safety and Security of the Secretariat early in 2022, all international staff were temporarily relocated from Nay Pyi Taw to Bangkok and are hosted in the compound of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific.

255. For 2027, no change is proposed to the number and levels of the posts.

256. It is proposed that the general temporary assistance position of Administrative Assistant (Local level) in Bangkok be continued. The continuation of the position in Bangkok would provide the administrative support necessary to the mission's international staff who have been relocated temporarily to Bangkok.

257. The increase in the requirements proposed for 2027 compared with the appropriation for 2026 is attributable primarily to higher requirements for civilian personnel, resulting from: (a) the application of a lower vacancy rate of zero per cent for international staff compared with 25.0 per cent applied in 2026; (b) the application of a lower vacancy rate of zero per cent for national staff compared with 50.0 per cent applied in 2026; (c) updated salary scales for international staff in New York; and (d) higher estimates for common staff costs for international staff in New York, based on past expenditure.

Extrabudgetary resources

258. In 2026, extrabudgetary resources in the estimated amount of $586,700 will be used to support activities and relevant initiatives aimed at promoting the implementation of General Assembly resolution 79/182 and would provide for one P-3 post and one P-2 post.

259. In 2027, extrabudgetary resources in the estimated amount of $123,000 are expected to support the continuation of activities.

260. The decrease in extrabudgetary resources in 2027 is due to absence of commitments pending donor agreements that are due for renewal in the third quarter of 2026, in line with the mission's single-year donor agreements practice.

11. Office of the Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan

($1,702,600)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027 and programme performance in 2025

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

261. The mandate of the Office of the Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan derives from Security Council resolution 2715 (2023), in which the Council, expressing alarm at the continued violence and humanitarian situation, in particular violations of international humanitarian law and grave human rights violations and abuses, welcomed the appointment of the Personal Envoy to use his good offices with the parties and the neighbouring States, complementing regional peace efforts, including those of the African Union and IGAD, and called upon all parties to extend their cooperation in furtherance of his tasks. This was reiterated by the Council in its resolution 2724 (2024), in which it encouraged the Personal Envoy to use his good offices with the parties and the neighbouring States, complementing and coordinating regional peace efforts. In its resolution 2736 (2024), the Council called upon the parties to the conflict to seek an immediate cessation of hostilities, leading to a sustainable resolution to the conflict, through dialogue, with the continued support of the Personal Envoy and the African Union High-level Implementation Panel. The Council encouraged the coordinated engagement of the Personal Envoy with the African Union, LAS and other key regional actors to help to advance peace and an inclusive and comprehensive Sudanese-led political process, with the full, equal, meaningful and safe participation of women, that reflected the aspirations of the Sudanese people.

Programme of work

Objective

262. The objective to which this mission contributes, is to seek an immediate cessation of hostilities, leading to a sustainable resolution to the Sudan conflict, and to advance a lasting peace through dialogue and an inclusive and comprehensive Sudanese-led political process that reflects the aspirations of the Sudanese people.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

263. To contribute to the objective, the mission will:

(a) Through good offices, consultations and shuttle diplomacy, support dialogue between the parties towards a cessation of hostilities, enhanced protection of civilians and the launch of an inclusive Sudanese-led political process, with the full, equal, meaningful and safe participation of women, in close collaboration with national, regional and international stakeholders;

(b) Support efforts aimed at reaching and implementing temporary truces and sequenced steps towards a cessation of hostilities, including confidence-building measures, in coordination with relevant regional and international actors;

(c) Support the coordination of international mediation initiatives by bringing together key regional and international stakeholders to enhance the overall effectiveness, coherence and integration of these initiatives and maximize their comparative advantages. Efforts will be aimed at harmonizing tracks of multilateral engagement, maximizing impact and leveraging peacemaking efforts, and advancing strategies on ensuring an inclusive process;

(d) Foster continued regional and international support for resolving the conflict in the Sudan, notably through advocacy, frequent dialogue and information exchange;

(e) Sustain and support consultations with a broad range of Sudanese civilian forces, including women and young people, to contribute to the United Nations initiatives aimed at advancing a cessation of hostilities, improving civilian protection in the Sudan and supporting an inclusive Sudanese-led political process.

264. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Parties making progress towards a negotiated cessation of hostilities, including through localized or issue-specific agreements, including those relating to transitional security arrangements, the protection of civilians and the advancement of humanitarian access;

(b) Technical coordination mechanisms in place to effectively enable efforts to reach and implement negotiated humanitarian truces and cessation of hostilities agreements, including through clear roles and responsibilities, communication mechanisms and reporting structures;

(c) Well-coordinated peace efforts, with clarity on the roles and respective responsibilities of stakeholders, on the basis of comparative advantage and taking account of capacities, leverage and any prior engagement on the issues, while giving effect to the principle of partnership and ensuring effective coordination of facilitation and other engagements;

(d) Possible outcomes of the peace and political processes being agreed through established mediation or facilitation frameworks;

(e) Civilian stakeholders being effectively engaged and informed on United Nations peacebuilding and peacemaking initiatives.

265. With regard to cooperation and coordination with other entities, the mission will liaise closely with all international and regional stakeholders involved in support of peace efforts in the Sudan, in particular the African Union, IGAD, LAS and the European Union, as well as neighbouring States. In doing so, it will work through established regional and Member State mechanisms to deepen strategic and operational engagements in carrying out good offices and mediation. It will also liaise closely with civilian actors through the various established civilian peacemaking platforms.

266. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the mission will cooperate with the Resident Coordinator/Humanitarian Coordinator and the agencies, funds and programmes of the United Nations operating in the Sudan and the region, and coordinate closely with the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs and special political missions and peacekeeping operations in the region.

267. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) The situation in the Sudan is likely to remain highly volatile, with the possibility of further fragmentation of political dynamics and increased hostilities. While a nationwide agreement on a cessation of hostilities may take time, there could be temporary, localized ceasefires;

(b) Shifting regional and international dynamics may create intermittent openings for de-escalation or renewed political engagement, including limited humanitarian truces or other focused measures creating space to alleviate civilian suffering and build incremental confidence between the parties in view of a permanent ceasefire;

(c) The international community will remain actively engaged in support of peace efforts in the Sudan and the parties to the conflict will continue to engage in discussions with the Personal Envoy to advance a Sudanese-led political process.

268. The mission integrates a gender perspective into its operational activities, deliverables and results, as appropriate. This includes promoting the full, equal, meaningful and safe participation of women in political and mediation processes and by ensuring that gender considerations inform analysis, engagement and reporting. The mission supports activities to advance gender-related issues and provides support for greater civic engagement towards more inclusive peace and political processes. The mission prioritizes regular consultations with Sudanese women to solicit their insights, views on developments in the Sudan and perspectives on the protection of civilians, particularly women, equal access to humanitarian aid and other concerns pertaining to participation in peace processes. This inclusive approach will allow Sudanese women to voice their concerns, needs and experiences.

269. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will seek to promote disability inclusion internally by creating space for employment opportunities for qualified candidates. At the political level, it will advocate for inclusion of the views of persons with disabilities in decision-making platforms, as change agents for peace, security and sustainable development.

Adjustments arising from the UN80 Initiative

270. The proposed programme plan for 2027 reflects changes arising from the UN80 Initiative. In particular, the tables of deliverables reflect updated planned deliverables for 2026, in line with the approved programme budget for 2026.

Programme performance in 2025

De-escalation and an inclusive political process

271. In 2025, against an increasingly fragmented and volatile political environment marked by continued hostilities, heightened risks to civilians and competing political trajectories, the Office of the Personal Envoy intensified its good offices with the conflict parties to maintain direct engagement, incentivizing dialogue and de-escalation, maintaining channels active with the parties and raising attention on the violence and its impact on the civilians. Extensive consultations took place between the Office and Sudanese civilian and political actors across the spectrum, including women and young people, underscoring a shared demand for an immediate ceasefire, interim measures to protect civilians and a civilian-led transition anchored in an inclusive Sudanese-owned political process.

272. In parallel, the Office played a facilitating role in strengthening coordination among mediation actors. Those efforts resulted in enhanced common messaging, further clarity on partners' roles and greater complementarity of efforts. The Office also began preparatory work to strengthen the political track, including a comparative analysis of political visions and road maps articulated by Sudanese stakeholders, to contribute to shared understanding and preparedness for structured consultations in support of an inclusive Sudanese-owned political process.

273. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 61).

Table 61

–	Commitment by both warring parties to enhance the protection of civilians, including the implementation of the Jeddah Declaration of Commitment to Protect the Civilians of Sudan	Women, young people and broader civilian actors see their priorities reflected in mediation efforts, strengthening their ownership, confidence and participation in a Sudanese-led political process Affected populations benefit from more effective peace efforts through better-coordinated mediation initiatives that deliver clearer messaging and complementary action

Planned result for 2027

Increased coherence of mediation initiatives in support of peace and of the launch of an inclusive political process

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

274. In 2025, the mission focused on aligning mediation initiatives, sustaining good offices with the parties and supporting inclusive political engagement. The mission supported the consultative meetings on enhancing coordination of peace initiatives, including the fourth meeting, in June 2025, facilitated the operationalization of a technical-level task force in January 2025 and reinforced multilateral coordination through the consolidation of the quintet (United Nations, European Union, African Union, LAS and IGAD) framework. The mission also conducted consultations with Sudanese civilians and advanced analytical and preparatory work, including a comparative analysis of political visions and road maps, to inform structured political engagements.

275. In 2027, the mission will continue to promote coherent and complementary mediation, sustain good offices with the conflict parties to encourage confidence-building and de-escalation, and advance inclusive civilian engagement and preparatory political work towards an inclusive, Sudanese-owned political process. This will include support for the Quad for Sudan's de-escalation efforts and coordination within the quintet to facilitate structured engagement of Sudanese stakeholders towards a credible political process.

Lessons learned and planned change

276. The lesson for the mission was that stronger coordination at multiple levels was one of the mission's most effective tools to reduce fragmentation, discourage disparate peace efforts and promote convergence around a coherent political process. In applying the lesson, the mission will prioritize structured coordination through established mechanisms, including the consultative meetings and the quintet framework, and focus on sequenced consultations, supported by analytical and preparatory work, while expanding the use of virtual and hybrid modalities to sustain inclusive participation.

277. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 62).

279. The proposed resources for 2027 for the Office of the Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan amount to $1,702,600 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for the salaries and common staff costs ($1,438,700) for the continuation of 7 posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, 2 P-5, 3 P-4 and 1 Local level), as well as operational costs ($263,900) comprising the provision for official travel ($136,400), facilities and infrastructure ($60,900), ground transportation ($5,000), communications and information technology ($36,300), medical ($3,000) and other supplies, services and equipment ($22,300).

280. For 2027, the mission proposes to change the duty station of the Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan from Algiers to Addis Ababa. Following the conclusion of the previous Personal Envoy's assignment, the Secretary-General decided to appoint a new Personal Envoy who would be based at the mission's official duty station in Addis Ababa. This proposed change reflects operational requirements and will further strengthen coordination with regional actors.

281. The decrease in the requirements proposed for 2027 compared with the appropriation for 2026 is attributable primarily to lower requirements for civilian personnel due to the application of a higher vacancy rate of 16.7 per cent for international staff compared with zero per cent applied in 2026. The decrease is offset in part by increased requirements for communications and information technology, reflecting updated charges for centralized services provided by the United Nations Office to the African Union that were not provisioned for previously, as well as higher telecommunication costs due to increased prices for local services.

Extrabudgetary resources

282. In 2026, extrabudgetary resources in the amount of $878,200 are projected. These resources will provide for three positions (1 D-1, 1 P-3 and 1 Field Service) providing critical expertise on security arrangements and ceasefires, as well as support for communication strategies and media engagement for the Personal Envoy. The resources will also cover expenses related to the mediation efforts of the Personal Envoy and associated operational costs.

283. For 2027, extrabudgetary resources in the estimated amount of $878,200 would continue to fund the three positions (1 D-1, 1 P-3 and 1 Field Service) and the continuation of programmatic activities.

12. Senior Representative for the implementation of Security Council resolution 2792 (2025)

($600,900)

A. Proposed programme plan for 2027

Overall orientation

Mandates and background

284. The Security Council, in its resolution 2792 (2025), recalled its relevant resolutions on the ongoing cooperation between Iraq and Kuwait on the return of Kuwaiti property and the national archives and the repatriation or return of all Kuwaiti and third-country nationals or their remains ("missing persons and property"), in particular resolutions 2107 (2013) and 2732 (2024), and underlined the humanitarian nature of those efforts. In its resolution 2792 (2025), the Council requested the Secretary-General to appoint a senior representative whose mandate would focus solely on promoting, supporting and facilitating efforts regarding the repatriation or return of all Kuwaiti and third-country nationals or their remains and the return of Kuwaiti property, including the national archives.

285. The mandate of the Senior Representative derives from Security Council resolution 2792 (2025), in which the Council requested the Secretary-General to keep it informed every six months and to make available his good offices to strengthen confidence and mutual trust between Iraq and Kuwait on missing persons and property. The Council encouraged continued efforts, with the support of the Senior Representative and ICRC, including through excavation of all sites of interest and making use of technology advances. The Council encouraged Member States to provide access and additional funding and training for, among others, forensic sciences, DNA analysis, satellite maps and imagery, and ground-penetrating radar. It welcomed capacity-building on innovative technologies and the sharing of lessons learned, for example, the training workshop for technical experts and decision makers conducted in Nicosia by the Committee on Missing Persons in Cyprus in 2024. The Council underlined that it would consider the continued need for United Nations oversight of missing persons and property no later than 31 December 2030, or sooner in the event of sufficient progress, and expressed its intention to review the situation by 30 June 2028.

Programme of work

Objective

286. The objective, to which the Senior Representative contributes, is the repatriation or return of all Kuwaiti and third-country nationals or their remains and the return of Kuwaiti property, including the national archives, as well as fostering confidence and mutual trust between Iraq and Kuwait on missing persons and property.

Strategy and external factors for 2027

287. To contribute to the objective, the Senior Representative will:

(a) Promote, support and facilitate efforts regarding the repatriation or return of missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals, or their remains, and the return of Kuwaiti property, including the national archives;

(b) Exercise the good offices of the Secretary-General to facilitate dialogue, build trust and overcome political or technical obstacles to the implementation of the mandate;

(c) Advocate for sustained political commitment from national authorities and international partners and promote coordination and information-sharing between Iraqi and Kuwaiti institutions;

(d) Encourage the use of modern technologies and methodologies, such as DNA analysis, satellite imagery and archival research;

(e) Encourage the strengthening of technical capacity through training and knowledge transfer on modern technologies.

288. The above-mentioned work is expected to result in:

(a) Expedited repatriation of the remains of Kuwaiti and third-country nationals and the accelerated return of Kuwaiti property, including the national archives;

(b) Building of mutual trust and enhanced cooperation between Iraq and Kuwait to foster confidence and sustain engagement and the political will to make progress in the search for missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals and the return of missing Kuwaiti property, including the national archives;

(c) Increased efficacy of search and identification efforts.

289. With regard to cooperation and coordination with other entities at the global, regional, national and local levels, the Senior Representative will liaise closely with all international and regional stakeholders involved in support of the implementation of the mandate, in particular the Iraqi authorities, including the Ministry of Defence, Kuwaiti authorities, the members of the Tripartite Commission, namely, France, Saudi Arabia, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America, and ICRC.

290. With regard to inter-agency coordination and liaison, the Senior Representative will continue to operate in a collaborative way to ensure coherent and effective support for the implementation of Security Council resolution 2792 (2025). The Senior Representative is supported by the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs and will work closely with other United Nations entities, as appropriate.

291. With regard to the external factors, the overall plan for 2027 is based on the following planning assumptions:

(a) Iraqi and Kuwaiti authorities will continue to maintain constructive engagement with each other and with the Senior Representative;

(b) Adequate financial resources, technical expertise and access to modern technologies will be secured to support search, identification and repatriation efforts;

(c) Security conditions at burial sites of interest will remain sufficiently stable to allow safe access for field missions and technical teams.

292. The mission will integrate a gender perspective into its operational activities, deliverables and results, as appropriate, in line with Security Council resolution 2792 (2025). The mission will encourage Iraqi and Kuwaiti counterparts to apply gender-responsive approaches in the search for missing persons, including in forensic processes and data collection.

293. In line with the United Nations Disability Inclusion Strategy, the mission will seek to promote disability inclusion internally by creating space for employment opportunities for qualified candidates. At the political level, it will encourage, as appropriate, national authorities and relevant stakeholders to apply disability-inclusive approaches in forensic and technological processes related to the search for missing persons and property.

Programme performance in 2025

Operationalization of the stand-alone mechanism under Security Council resolution 2792 (2025) initiated

294. In December 2025, first steps were undertaken to start the operationaliztion of the mechanism on the issue of missing persons and the return of Kuwaiti property that will contribute to ensuring the handover of the residual mandate from the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq upon its closure on 31 December 2025 to the new mechanism pursuant to resolution 2792 (2025). Preparation of the first report of the Secretary-General pursuant to resolution 2792 (2025), due by 31 March 2026, has also commenced, and with the closure of the Mission, an effective handover of tasks to the new mechanism was completed in December.

295. Progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 67).

Table 67

Planned result for 2027

Progress and reinforced cooperative approaches between Iraq and Kuwait on missing persons and property

Programme performance in 2025 and target for 2027

296. In 2025, the mission initiated the operationalization of the stand-alone mechanism under resolution 2792 (2025).

297. In 2027, the Senior Representative will actively promote, support and facilitate efforts regarding the repatriation or return of all missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals or their remains, and the return of Kuwaiti property, including the national archives. The Senior Representative will use his/her good offices, as requested by the Security Council, to strengthen confidence and mutual trust between Iraq and Kuwait. The Senior Representative will support and complement existing mechanisms, working in close cooperation with the Tripartite Commission and its technical subcommittee under the auspices of ICRC.

298. The Senior Representative will also support efforts to mobilize technical and financial support to enhance national capacities, including advocating for access to and the provision of advanced technologies that can improve the search for and identification of remains significantly. The efforts will be undertaken to promote capacity-building and knowledge transfer, including building on successful examples referenced by the Council, such as the lessons learned from the Committee on Missing Persons in Cyprus.

Lessons learned and planned change

299. A lesson learned was the need to better align political engagement with the rapidly evolving dynamics between Iraq and Kuwait in order to maximize opportunities for constructive dialogue. In applying the lesson, the mission will adopt a more proactive and adaptive engagement approach and more frequent political analysis of the contextual political situation. It will also sustain continuous dialogue to preserve momentum during periods of limited political space.

300. Expected progress towards the objective is presented in the performance measure below (see table 68).

302. The proposed resources for 2027 for the Senior Representative for the implementation of Security Council resolution 2792 (2025) amount to $600,900 (net of staff assessment) and would provide for the salaries and common staff costs ($440,800) for the continuation of two posts (Assistant Secretary-General (home-based, on a when-actually-employed basis) and P-4), as well as operational costs ($160,100) comprising the provision for official travel ($122,900), facilities and infrastructure ($15,600), ground transportation ($8,000), communications and information technology ($4,400) and other supplies, services and equipment ($9,200).

303. For 2027, no change is proposed to the number and levels of the posts.

304. The increase in requirements for 2027 compared with the appropriation for 2026 is attributable mainly to higher requirements under civilian personnel, owing to the application of a lower vacancy rate of zero per cent compared with 50 per cent applied in 2026. The increase is offset in part by reduced requirements under communications and information technology owing to the removal of the one-time provision for communications and information technology equipment approved in 2026.

Brief description of the recommendation	Action taken to implement the recommendation

Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions
(A/80/7/Add.11)

Without prejudice to the distinct mandates of each entity, and subject to the decisions of the legislative bodies, as appropriate, the Advisory Committee trusts that the Secretary-General, in the context of the UN80 Initiative, will identify opportunities for consolidation of the United Nations presence, in particular where multiple entities coexist, and for further rationalization of functions and strengthened synergies among entities, including a clear delineation of roles to be performed by the missions and by the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs. The Committee looks forward to receiving relevant proposals in the next budget submission (para. 8).

Special political missions remain committed to strengthening the efficiency, coherence and effectiveness of the United Nations system while fully respecting the distinct mandates established by legislative bodies and the specific political, operational and security requirements of each mission.

In this regard, opportunities for the consolidation of support structures, the rationalization of administrative and back-office functions and strengthened common services are being examined, where feasible and without prejudice to mandate implementation. For special political missions, such efforts will continue to be pursued on a case-by-case basis, taking into account host country conditions, mission size, security considerations and the need to preserve operational agility and political responsiveness. An example of this approach is the closure of the United Nations Mission to support the Hudaydah Agreement (UNMHA) and the transfer of related functions to the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen, a decision taken by the Security Council in January 2026 based on the options presented by the Secretary-General, with a view to streamlining the United Nations presence and ensuring continued support for the political process through more integrated arrangements.

Special political missions also recognize the importance of a clearer delineation of responsibilities between missions and the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs, particularly in areas such as strategic guidance, policy support, programmatic backstopping and administrative service delivery.

Any specific proposals with programmatic, structural or resource implications will be submitted for the consideration of Member States in future budget submissions, as appropriate.

Brief description of the recommendation	Action taken to implement the recommendation
The Advisory Committee has repeatedly emphasized the continued need to monitor the large number of high-level posts and avoid their proliferation across the Organization. The Committee therefore welcomes the proposal to abolish high-level posts within special political missions and the ongoing efforts under the UN80 Initiative to reduce duplication at the senior leadership level. The Committee trusts that the Secretary-General will continue to holistically assess mission structures, as well as the number and level of posts, to ensure balanced staffing components, including through rejuvenation and by maintaining and recruiting lower-level staff, and that related proposals will be presented in the next budget submission (para. 9).	Cluster I missions take note of the observations of the Advisory Committee and reaffirm their commitment to maintaining staffing structures that are efficient, fit for purpose and aligned with evolving mandate requirements. In this regard, the missions remain committed to ensuring an appropriate balance in staffing components, including through careful management of the number and level of posts, efforts to reduce high-level posts, where feasible, and measures to promote the rejuvenation and increased nationalization of posts, while preserving the substantive and operational capacities required for effective mandate implementation. At the same time, it is noted that cluster I missions are, in general, small and operate with already lean structures. Furthermore, cluster I missions had already put forward reductions in high-level posts as part of the revised estimates submitted for the 2026 budget, including the abolishment of seven posts (1 Under-Secretary-General, 1 Assistant Secretary-General and 5 P-5) and the downward reclassification of two D-2 posts to D-1. Consequently, opportunities to further reduce senior-level posts are limited and must be considered carefully to avoid adversely affecting leadership capacity, political engagement, managerial oversight and delivery of mandated activities. Any adjustments to mission structures therefore require a case-by-case assessment based on operational realities and mandate needs. Notwithstanding these constraints, cluster I missions have continued to identify efficiencies and contribute to the broader objectives of the Organization. Current proposals include the abolishment of an Under-Secretary-General post in the office of support for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1559 (2004), as well as the proposal in the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria for the downward reclassification of one D-1 post to the P-5 level. These measures reflect continued efforts to streamline senior leadership structures and reduce duplication, where appropriate. Cluster I missions will continue to holistically review mission structures and staffing profiles, including the number and level of posts, with a view to ensuring balanced staffing components, supporting rejuvenation and sustaining mandate delivery. Any further proposals with structural or resource implications will be presented for the consideration of Member States in future budget submissions, as appropriate.

The Advisory Committee trusts that the Secretary-General will ensure the continued implementation of mandated activities and address challenges related to the proposed level of resources. The Committee looks forward to receiving updated information on mandate implementation and comprehensive mitigation plans in the next budget submission (para. 10).	Cluster I special political missions remain committed to the continued implementation of all mandated activities within the level of resources approved by the General Assembly. In the context of the UN80 Initiative and evolving resource parameters, missions continue to prioritize the effective delivery of their mandates through targeted mitigation measures designed to preserve substantive impact while enhancing efficiency. To mitigate the impact of resource constraints, missions have sought efficiencies through strengthened collaboration and coordination with the established network of regional resident coordinators, relevant field operations and United Nations country teams, as well as with regional and subregional organizations. These efforts are intended to maximize complementarities, avoid duplication and leverage existing capacities across the wider United Nations system. Missions have also expanded the use of technology to support mandate delivery, including increased recourse to virtual meetings, online collaboration platforms and digital training tools. These measures are expected to sustain outreach, engagement and knowledge-sharing in a cost-effective manner while improving operational flexibility. In addition, the missions continue to identify opportunities for cost optimization under operational expenditure, including through prudent management of travel, contractual services, facilities and other non-post resources, while safeguarding critical programmatic and security requirements. Any adjustments to the programme plan arising from the UN80 Initiative are presented as part of the current report under each mission.
Without prejudice to the separate mandate of the mission, pursuant to Security Council resolutions 1559 (2004) and 1680 (2006), the Advisory Committee trusts that the Secretary-General, in the context of the UN80 Initiative, will identify opportunities for further synergies among relevant entities operating in similar geographical or thematic areas, with relevant proposals to be presented in the next budget submission (para. 43).	The position of Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1559 (2004), at the level of Under-Secretary-General, will be abolished as part of efforts to enhance coherence and synergies in line with the UN80 Initiative. The functions previously exercised by the Special Envoy will be assumed by the Department of Peacebuilding and Political Affairs led by the Under-Secretary-General for Peacebuilding and Political Affairs, supported by dedicated capacity to implement the mandate. This consolidation is intended to strengthen overall United Nations leadership and coordination while avoiding duplication.

Noting the continuing suspension of the Gali Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism, the Advisory Committee is of the view that a comprehensive assessment of the actual requirements of the mission, including a fuller cost-benefit analysis of its locations vis-à-vis mandate implementation and the consideration of potential additional staffing adjustments, taking also into account existing capacity within the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs, should be presented in the next budget submission (para. 46 (c)).	The operational requirements of the United Nations Representative to the Geneva International Discussions are driven by its mandated responsibilities, including support for the Geneva International Discussions, participation in pre-round consultations with stakeholders, facilitation of the Incident Prevention and Response Mechanism, liaison with participants, coordination with humanitarian partners and regular analysis and reporting to Headquarters. Following approval of the revised estimates under the UN80 Initiative, strategic leadership and the functions of the United Nations co-Chair of the Geneva International Discussions were transferred to the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs in New York effective January 2026. Accordingly, the Department conducted a cost-benefit analysis of the redeployment of the P-3 post to New York to provide substantive support to the United Nations co-Chair and strengthen coordination with the European Union and Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe co-Chairs at the Headquarters level. The analysis indicates that the redeployment would generate estimated savings of approximately $6,800 through lower post adjustment costs compared with Geneva. In addition, the creation of one post of Administrative Assistant (General Service (Other level)) is considered necessary to provide administrative and operational support following the abolishment of the corresponding post in Geneva. These staffing changes are intended to ensure effective support for the Geneva International Discussions and strengthened oversight and management of the United Nations Representative to the Geneva International Discussions.
Considering the existing capacity within the regional structure shared by the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs and the Department of Peace Operations, the Advisory Committee trusts that, in the context of the ongoing efforts under the UN80 Initiative, the requirement for the post of Senior Political Officer (P-5) in New York will be reassessed, with proposals to be included in the next budget submission (para. 85).	The Senior Political Affairs Officer, based at Headquarters, leads the Sudan team within the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs and Department of Peace Operations regional structure that serves as the liaison between the Office of the Personal Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan and Headquarters, with distinct responsibilities that include engagement with Security Council members and advising senior leadership. This requires a high level of experience and seniority and full-time engagement and could not be absorbed by existing teams covering other files. The Sudan team’s workload remains among the heaviest in the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs and Department of Peace Operations regional structure. Continued conflict escalation and intensified peacemaking efforts have driven a substantial increase in diplomatic activity on the Sudan, including Security Council activity, requiring sustained Headquarters engagement. In this context, supporting the Personal

	Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan, who leads United Nations political engagement to help to end the conflict, requires a dedicated Senior Political Affairs Officer to ensure coherence in United Nations political engagement on the Sudan. The post is also necessary to provide day-to-day leadership to the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs and Department of Peace Operations Sudan team, as well as strategic advice to senior United Nations officials, while ensuring effective coordination among United Nations entities at Headquarters. With the appointment of a new Personal Envoy in 2026, the activity of the Envoy's office is expected to increase further, underscoring the need to preserve this critical Headquarters capacity.
In view of the resource optimization efforts under the UN80 Initiative, the Advisory Committee trusts that updated information on the complementarity of functions and coordination among entities addressing hate speech across the United Nations, along with an overview of dedicated resources across all funding sources, will be provided in future budget proposals (para. 88).	The Office of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on the Prevention of Genocide is the United Nations system-wide focal point on hate speech and coordinates the implementation of the United Nations Strategy and Plan of Action on Hate Speech across the United Nations system. In this capacity, the Office coordinates and chairs the Working Group on Hate Speech, which comprises 19 United Nations entities that work on addressing hate speech from the perspective of their specific mandates. The Strategy and the Working Group enable the United Nations system to bring together its efforts under a common vision and strategic objectives, as outlined in the Strategy, and to ensure maximum impact across the United Nations system.
Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/80/7/Add.30)
The Advisory Committee considers that the proposed Headquarters location should be kept under review, based on the mission's operational requirements, and trusts that updated information will be provided in the next budget submission, including consideration of its relocation closer to the area of operations, taking into account also efficiencies under official travel requirements (para. 11).	The Secretariat takes note of the Advisory Committee's recommendation that the proposed Headquarters location should be kept under review in the light of evolving operational requirements. In this regard, it may be recalled that, subsequent to the most recent budget submission, the Fifth Committee approved one post of Political Affairs Officer (P-4) but did not approve the requested General Service (Other level) administrative support post. Against this backdrop, the Secretariat considers that, at present, maintaining the duty station in New York reflects both the political and Security Council-focused nature of the mandate under resolution 2792 (2025) and the most efficient use of the limited resources available. Being based at Headquarters enables direct and routine access to the Security Council, the Executive Office of the Secretary-General and the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs, which is essential for timely briefings and consultations.

Brief description of the recommendation	Action taken to implement the recommendation
	This configuration is further shaped by the current resource structure, whereby the Senior Representative is supported by a single Political Affairs Officer (P-4) embedded within the Middle East Division of the Department of Political and Peacebuilding Affairs, with no dedicated administrative support post. The Senior Representative and the P-4 therefore rely extensively on existing capacities within the Division for a wide range of administrative and logistical support functions, including the scheduling of meetings, travel arrangements, visa processing and other related requirements. Maintaining the duty station in New York allows the mechanism to fully leverage these existing support structures, enabling a very small team to operate effectively without establishing a separate field support footprint, while also preserving impartiality between Iraq and Kuwait by avoiding a permanent presence in one capital. At the same time, efforts are being made to address the challenges posed by distance and time zones and to ensure that operational modalities remain as efficient as possible. Official travel is carefully consolidated and strategically planned, with combined visits to Iraq and Kuwait aligned, to the extent possible, with meetings of the Tripartite Commission and its Technical Subcommittee calendars. Between such visits, engagement with relevant counterparts is sustained through videoconferencing and other remote means, thereby supporting continuity while containing costs. The Secretariat will continue to keep these arrangements under review, as requested by the Advisory Committee, and will provide updated information in future budget submissions, as appropriate.
The Advisory Committee trusts that information on the efforts of the Senior Representative to seek extrabudgetary funding will be included in the next report of the Secretary-General (para. 17).	The Senior Representative has been actively engaging with relevant Member States in New York, including Iraq and Kuwait. She will travel to both Iraq and Kuwait in June 2026 to meet with government officials and other interlocutors, with a view to gaining a comprehensive understanding of all aspects of the mandate and the perspectives of each side. The Senior Representative will attend the Tripartite Commission as soon as her observer status is confirmed by both sides. Participation in this forum will be instrumental in further deepening her understanding of the issues at hand, as well as the expectations of all parties. Following several rounds of engagement with the relevant stakeholders, the Senior Representative will be in a stronger position to provide an update on any potential opportunities for extrabudgetary funding.

The Advisory Committee trusts that the Secretary-General will continue to reassess the structure, level and number of personnel of the mission support component, with a view to identifying further efficiencies commensurate with the substantially reduced operations and will present more comprehensive information on the projected workload of the mission and related staffing proposals in his next report (para. 37).	The assessment determined that the current staffing level represented the minimum critical capacity required to sustain mandate implementation, enabling the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen to continue to meet its obligations to the Security Council, protect its personnel and maintain the credibility and effectiveness of its political and mediation engagement. For 2027 the Office will continue to pursue efficiencies through the optimization of existing resources, while ensuring alignment with projected workload requirements.
The Advisory Committee trusts that more detailed information on the impact of the closure of UNMHA and the relocation of the position of Programme Management Officer to Aden on the provision of technical assistance to mine action bodies and its workload will be provided in the next budget report (para. 39).	Since the deployment of the Programme Management Officer to Aden in April, numerous in-person meetings have been held with the national authorities for mine action and the other stakeholders, including four international NGOs operating in government-controlled areas. The Programme Management Officer has played a bridge role between the local authorities, the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen and the United Nations country team, facilitating information-sharing and validation of data, including threat analysis relating to landmines, explosive remnants of war, sea mines and improvised explosive devices. Engagement with the Chair of the national mine action committee has supported discussions on a multi-year national mine action strategy. At the request of the World Food Programme, three explosive ordnance risk education sessions were held, reaching 132 United Nations staff and 45 partner personnel. The coordination role of the Programme Management Officer is critical. The incumbent contributes to security planning, including discussions on road openings. The monitoring and analysis of data through third-party reporting mechanisms further supports situational awareness.
The Advisory Committee trusts that the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen will reassess air transport needs based on actual workload following the transfer of residual functions to it and will continue to explore additional opportunities for cost-sharing arrangements with other entities, with information to be provided in future budget submissions (para. 45).	The Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen requires a dedicated fixed-wing aircraft to effectively implement its operational and political mandate, particularly following the transfer of residual functions from UNMHA. The mission's activities demand timely, flexible and secure air transport across Yemen and the wider region, given that the urgency and sensitivity of movements for the Special Envoy frequently exceed standard operational timelines. These movements are driven by ongoing mediation efforts, political engagements and evolving security conditions, including support for prisoner exchange mechanisms, Redeployment Coordination Committee engagements and high-level advocacy with regional and international stakeholders.

	The aircraft provides essential operational capacity for mandate implementation, good offices engagement, and the secure transport of personnel and delegations, particularly in high-risk contexts where commercial options are unavailable. Implementation of the Office's mandate, including responsibilities under Security Council resolution 2813 (2026), requires regular movement of staff and delegations between Amman, Sana'a and Aden, as well as regional hubs such as Muscat and Djibouti. These missions support key activities, including Military Coordination Committee meetings, ceasefire monitoring and direct political consultations with parties and stakeholders. Sensitive political processes, notably prisoner exchange arrangements, further require the use of United Nations-managed or unmarked aircraft to ensure neutrality and safe participation. In addition, the aircraft facilitates the movement of senior United Nations officials and emergency response functions such as casualty and medical evacuations and the transport of non-United Nations and official delegations under the United Nations mandate. The operating environment in Yemen severely limits alternatives. There are no commercial flights to Sana'a, access to Aden remains unreliable, safe ground routes are absent, United Nations Humanitarian Air Service operations have been suspended since early April and conflict in the region continues to disrupt aviation access. These constraints, combined with fuel supply challenges, make dedicated United Nations aviation assets the only viable means of sustaining operations. Without such capacity, the Office's ability to operate within Yemen and engage meaningfully in the political process would be significantly curtailed, undermining effective mandate delivery and limiting engagement to external actors.
